EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

REPUBLICANS, pay your State and county taxes.

NEW YORK newspapers are in a war of prices while those in Cincinnati are engaging in a war of words.

THE apathy of the average Democrat is about as dense as the fogs that enshroud the earth these mornings.

LET the Republican who has paid his State and county taxes see that his Republican neighbor does likewise.

IT is now hinted that Mr. Gould has laid a plot to get hold of the Northern Pacific railroad. Can such things be?

IT IS estimated that the corn crop of Kansas will be 206,899,739 bushels, 50,000,000 more than the large crop of last year.

IF every day were made a pay day it might be possible to secure a fuller attendance at the sessions of the Legislature.

WHAT'S to be done about Thanksgiving day in this state if the legislature doesn't adjourn before the last Thursday in November.

THE Census Bureau will issue 15 volumes each with 1500 pages. One is about completed and the last one will appear about ten years after the 1890 census is taken.

UNLESS you have a tax receipt in your pocket it would be well to hunt up the collector and liquidate his little bill. In this state a man must pay his taxes if he wants to vote.

THE senate is now meeting two days in the week. The house is meeting more frequently, though to no purpose. We presume this farce will be kept up until after the election.

THERE is a great deal of Democratic harmony floating about the country. It is the same kind that afflicted the republicans of Pennsylvania last year and is likely to have the same effect.

THEY say there is some danger that Leon Abbett, democratic candidate for governor of New Jersey, will be attacked by the same type of malaria which has been so fatal to Judge Hoadly.

HON. WILLIAM M. EVARTS predicts that only four men will be voted for in the Republican convention next year, and their names are Arthur, Edwards, Blaine and Sherman. Perhaps Mr. Evarts forgets the result of the conventions in 1860, or he would make some allowance for dark horses.

THE news of General Butler's renomination by the Massachusetts Democrats will excite little interest. It was a foregone conclusion, there being no other man at their disposal with whom they would stand the least chance of winning. Whether they will be able to elect him is quite another thing.

A RECENT British publication is authority for the statement that the United States have in their coal mines an aggregate wealth equivalent to seven and a half billions of horse power, which is five hundred millions greater than England, and the same amount in excess of the combined aggregates of France and Germany.

THE Massachusetts Democrats declare in their platform that they "oppose all sumptuary laws which infringe upon the sacred rights of personal liberty." Which being interpreted means that they are opposed to all laws which would prevent the rumsellers enriching themselves at the expense of the helpless wives and children of their victims. They are in favor of protecting the saloon in its war upon the home.

Railroad Investment.

The Philadelphia North American finds by reference to a statement compiled for Poor's Railroad Manual that the total amount of capital invested in our vast American system of railways at the close of the year 1882 was $6,800,000,000, being an increase of about $700,000,000 in one year. Of course the figures, it remarks, are truly astonishing, and they have been used with considerable effect by the panic mongers in New York and Philadelphia as an excuse for alarm at this supposed undue expansion, so that the result is seen in a very large and steady depreciation of the prices and value of our railway securities. And yet we may reasonably inquire whether this enormous absorption of capital was not directly caused by the prolonged stagnation of all other kinds of business which began on the first of July, 1881, and has been continued without interruption ever since. If there had been the regular and usual activity of commerce, manufactures and domestic trade, of course money would not have become so much of a drug or have been compelled to seek investment in this immense railway movement for lack of better employment.

The contraction in all other lines of business has, however, at last reached the railways, and after the remarkable expansion of the railway system which took place during the year 1881, the present year has witnessed a marked falling off in the mileage of new railways, which has now been followed by a spasmodic and rather remarkable depreciation of the market values of all the leading railway securities. How far this movement is likely to extend cannot now be foreseen, but there are some reasons for believing that its proportions have been very greatly exaggerated to suit the purposes of powerful cliques of capitalists, railroad operators and stock speculators intent upon gobbling up the control of important lines of railway at extremely low prices, or else aiming to arrest and prevent the completion of rival and competing lines of railway now in progress with fair prospects of being finished and put into successful operation.

The history of the panic of 1873 cannot be too carefully studied by the miscellaneous public at the present time, since it shows how foolish and ruinous such panics are in view of the fact, now so well known that all the railroads that were bankrupted in that panic subsequently became solvent, profitable, valuable, both to their owners and to the people of the country. Those who bear in mind this lesson will not now be ready to give way to a panic and sacrifice their railway securities under the influence of a sudden scare

THE Lancaster Examiner notes the fact that in Lancaster, so far as it has been able to ascertain, the great body of the Republicans are solid for the ticket, not only passively, but warmly; while not an Independent is known who will not give it party support. It says there may be a crank or two, but even they are not out-spoken. The same thing is true of Harrisburg and vicinity There are none there so far as it is known, says the Telegragh, who voted for either Beaver or Stewart who will not vote for Niles and Livsey; while for every one of these who has not openly declared his purpose to do so, there are at least fifty who supported Pattison who declare their purpose to vote Republican hereafter. The information of the Pittsburg Dispatch to the same effect in the Western part of the State, is sustained as to the south, the centre, the north and the east by the best advices obtainable. It is going to be a cold year all around for the pilgrim Democracy.

BUTLER has secured two nominations for governor of Massachusetts, viz., Greenback and Democratic. Now we will see if he can make his second election. We think not, but time will tell.

Government Telegraph.

The Journal of Commerce states that the property of the Western Union Telegraph could be reproduced for $15,000,000 or possibly for $10,000,000 or $12,000,000. A dividend (say) 10 per cent. on $15,000,000 would be $15,000,000. Add for sinking fund $100,000, and we have $1,600,000. The net profits for the year ending June 30, 1882, were $7,000,000. The difference between $1,600,000 and $7,000,000 is the amount made by overcharging the public and underpaying the operators, in other words, by plunder.

We welcome the suggestion that the government should construct telegraph lines on all post roads and should open them to the public at moderate rates, thus breaking up an infamous and despotic monopoly.

Some of the leading journals of the country, among which is the New York Herald, have been urging for some time the establishment of postal telegraph and we think it is the duty of the press of the whole country to urge this matter upon the attention of our law makers earnestly. The county press should take a hand in this matter to right this great wrong. This great monopoly has bled the people outrageously for years and a patient public has submitted. The price paid for messages from Bellefonte to all points is three times as much as need be if the stock of this company was not watered beyond all reason. The company is and has been for years making every effort to pay big dividends on water. They have made their employes work night and day (Sundays included) and charged big prices for messages in order to give money to a lot of thieves. Yes, we mean thieves—for men who will take stock which cost them nothing and should be worth nothing and then rob the public to get dividends on this valueless stock are thieves in every sense of the word. Then there is another matter which the people of Bellefonte should ask a reason for, viz: why is it that we have to pay 25 cents for a message to any point near here if not further than Milesburg, when they will do the work in other parts of the country for half this sum? When we were in New Hampshire last spring this same company forwarded 20 words a distance of 20 miles (we do not know how much further they would have sent it for same price) for sixteen cents. If they can do this for such a price in New Hampshire why can they not do the same in Pennsylvania? The remedy for all this is a government telegraph and the government should not purchase any lines now built but construct their own.

THE impudence of the chairman of the Democratic committee, in claiming the vote of the Independents of last year, is only equalled by its stupidity. Does Mr. Hensel believe that the Independents, in helping elect Pattison, intended to place into power the very worst elements of the Democracy? Now the Cassidys, Gordons, Amermans, &c., rule the roost and the Governor has put himself in their keeping, and their antics are so preposterous that he himself can't help retching every now and then at the spectacle, can he believe that this is the kind of reform the Independents were after last year, and that they wish to confirm it this? Even at the expense of Mr. Hensel's character for sincerity, those who know him will give him credit for too much intellect to believe any thing of the kind. Mr. Hensel, it is not worth while to try to make people believe you are a fool out and out: they know better.

IF anything could render the position of the Democrats in the Legislature more ridiculous than it has been for months, we have it now. Even with the help of a vigilance committee, they are not able to hold enough of their party in their seats to pass a bill. The Constitution must be enforced however.

Doing Nothing.

Again as we refer to the legislative body of the richest state in the Union we are compelled to repeat the old story that it is simply meeting and adjourning from day to day and is doing nothing. This state of inactivity is costing $3000 per day and has cost almost $350,000. The Democrats declare that an apportionment must be passed and the Republicans would willingly agree to a reasonble one, but do not care to pass a bill prepared expressly with the object of sending Cassidy to the United States Senate. Meanwhile, Democrats continue to excuse themselves on the plea that they are battling for the Constitution. It may to some be a display of reverence for the organic law to stand up and with great solemnity declare that apportionment bills must be passed because the constitution demands it. But such posing deceives nobody, unless it be the men who do it.

It is very well known that under the constitution the Legislature preceding this was charged with the duty of redistricting the State. But it is also well known that the Democrats did not want the Legislature to redistrict the State. As it happened the apportionment could not be made during the regular session of the Legislature. But had Governor Hoyt thought it necessary, he could have convened that Legislature into an extraordinary session for that purpose. It was as much a necessity then as it was when Governor Pattison issued his mandate. The Democrats were unanimously opposed to an extra session for that purpose at that time. Do the patriotic, constitution-loving gentlemen know why? Do they not know that the Democrats were opposed to obeying the mandate of the constitution then because the Legislature was Republican? At what time did the paramount importance of the constitutional mandate occur to these gentlemen? The constitution was not made last year. Its mandate was as binding then as now. Yet these very men were opposed to obeying it under a call from Governor Hoyt. We strip the mask from these men who mouth the constitution, and exhibit them as demagogues.

THE weight of our literature down to a very late day, if not until this day, has tended to give the word hero in the common mind a general color of gold lace, tinsel, and burnished arms. How different the real heroes are, the public papers of any day would show, if we could only clear from our minds the glamour thrown over them by the novelist and historian, and be able to recognize the hero when we see him. John Bull, a plain American citizen, was the engineer of a fast passenger train. On a recent night he was running at frightful speed, when he saw a freight train ahead of him, and that it would be impossible to avoid a destructive collision. What did he do? Slow up as much as he could, jump off in time and let his passengers be driven to death? Not so. He put the brakes on the passenger coaches, cut his engine loose, and as they slowed up safely, went to his death by pulling out his throttle valve and plunging his engine into the freight train. Where in all the tales of war has such self-sacrificing heroism been displayed, as John Bull's?

JUDGE AGNEW is out in a strong letter in favor of the election of the Republican State ticket. Chairman Hensel will take notice that the Independent column is not coming to his relief this time. Governor Pattison is going the whole Democratic hog, tail and all, as though "me and Hensel" did it all last year The Independents mean to teach brother Hensel a lesson he will not soon forget. Chairman Hensel, in his paper, the Intelligencer after the election last year undertook to prove that Democrats owed nothing to the Independents; that they could have won without the Stewart vote.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

The Harrisburg Patriot, the most intensely Democratic newspaper in Pennsylvania and the one that howls most vociferously about a constitutional apportionment, and in favor of the extra session, was last year of a decidedly different opinion, although the same reasons for it existed. The only difference was that last year both houses of the legislature were Republican. The Philadelphia Times quotes from the columns of the Patriot as follows:

From the Harrisburg Patriot, March 5, 1882.

In a regular session of six months' duration the Legislature demonstrated its inability to pass an apportionment. The time fixed by the Constitution for apportioning Senators and members was permitted to go by. It would be a species of presumption then, in the Executive, to bring the Legislature together to perform an act which it has already refused deliberately to perform. When this Legislature adjourned without making the apportionment it was done with the subject.

To bring the same members back for the work which they could not or would not perform would be child's play.

From the Harrisburg Patriot, March 17, 1882

Some Republican members of the Legislature think that the Governor will make a mistake if he does not call an extra session. Have they not had enough salary?

From the Harrisburg Patriot, March 18, 1882

The Democratic members of the Legislature do not desire an extra session. In this respect they are in entire accord with Governor Hoyt, who does not intend to call one.

According to Senator Cooper every Republican member of the Legislature is in favor of an extra session. There could not be a better reason why every Republican member should be left at home when the people next come to choose their representatives.

Senator Cooper estimates that an extra session would cost the Treasury only $125,000. It would cost that for the salary of members alone, if the session should last no longer than fifty days, to say nothing of pay of officers and expense of printing. An extra session would cost little less than half a million.

THE Clerk of the House of Representatives, through his journal, the Watchman, tries to frighten Republicans into passing a Democratic apportionment bill, by asserting that if no apportionment is made Pennsylvania may be disfranchised in the next Congress Don't affright your dear little soul on that score, chief clerk; and if such a result does ensue it will be the fault of the Democratic House, and the people will remedy it when they elect representatives again.

IF the process of reduction in the price of newspapers is kept up at the present rate for any lengthened period, it seems probable that the enterprising publisher of the future will have to go beyond the chromo stage of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad rate cutting, and give a chromo and a free lunch to all who will do him the favor to fetch a paper away from his office. There are boundless possibilities in store for unremunerative enterprise.

THE Harrisburg Telegraph comments on the situation in this way: "Another war of rates is in progress on the Western railroads, and their passengers are enjoying a season of cheap fares. Very often we hear congratulations expressed over this state of affairs, as though the public have interests diverse from those of the companies, and a reduction of the value of the property of the latter is a gain to the former. This, it is believed, is a very great mistake. In this country the people cannot get along without railroads; they were promoted indeed by them in the public interests, and the prosperity of one, is the prosperity of the other. Can a reduction of fares below the proper cost of carriage, which must throw the deficiency upon other departments of the service, be beneficial to the public? It would seem not, unless the ordinary rules of arithmetic are reversed. Instead of gloating over a war of rates as an advantage, every business man should interest himself in helping to devise some means to avert the war of rates. The common interest requires that fair rates and reasonable profits should be earned by all."

CHAIRMAN HENSEL is appealing for money.

Poetry.

IN THE LAST PEW.

She sits, bent o'er with wrinkled face,
Poor and forlornly old; no grace
Smooths the sharp angles of her form,
Long buffeted by life's slow storm,
All else around is fine and fair;
The stained light falls a golden glare,
In seeming mockery on her loose gray hair.

The preacher, faultlessly arrayed,
Tells how our hearts afar have strayed,
And how all souls should be content
With these good blessings God has sent;
And one of all that self-poised throng
Hangs on his words nor deems them long,
And humbly thinks only her heart is wrong.

She meekly mumbles o'er the hymn,
Her eyes with age and tear-drops dim;
What can their gay world hold for her—
This worn and weary worshipper?
Now, rustling down the aisles in pride,
They toss bright smiles on every side;
Nor does she know the hearts such fair looks hide.

And still she sits with tearwet face,
As loath to leave that sacred place;
The organ, with quick thunders riven,
Lifts her sad, trembling soul to heaven;
She feels a sense of blissful rest,
Her bony hands across her breast
She clasps and slowly sighs: "God knoweth best."

One day, within some grander gate
Where kings and ministers must wait
While she hopes humbly for low place
Far from the dear Lord's shining face,
Above the chant of heavenly choir
These words may sound with gracious fire:
"Well done, good, faithful servant, come up higher!"

LOVELINESS.

Once I knew a little girl,
Very plain;
You might try her hair to curl,
All in vain;
On her cheek no tint of rose
Paled or blushed, or sought repose;
She was plain.

But the thoughts that through her brain
Came and went,
As a recompense for pain,
Angels sent;
So full many a beauteous thing,
In her young soul blossoming,
Gave content.

Every thought was full of grace,
Pure and true;
And in time the homely face
Lovelier grew,
With a heavenly radience bright,
From the soul's reflected light
Shining through.

So I tell you, little child,
Plain or poor,
If your thoughts are undefiled,
You are sure
Of the loveliness of worth;
And this beauty not of earth
Will endure.

SOME TIME.

"Some time," the blue-eyed maiden cried,
"Some time I'll be a rich man's bride,
I'll have his gold when he is old,
And grandly in a coach I'll ride."

"Some time," the brown eyed maiden cried,
And blushing turned her face aside,
"God grant it me! I'll married be
To him whom Heaven shall provide."

The blue-eyed maiden had her way;
She married one both rich and gray,
And when he died she took his pride,
And that is all she took—they say.

A handsome lover came one day
And bore the brown-eyed maid away;
He was her life and she—his wife;
What more is there to ask or say?

Our Story Teller.

A Leak in the Roof.

Mrs. Drayton had just put the tea-kettle over the fire for tea.

That bright, cheery New Hampshire kitchen—not even the driving northeast rain, which poured in torrents outside, could put a damper on its merry aspect. Close to the window a bulfinch whistled meditatively in its cage of woven wicker boughs—a pomegranate tree on the other side was all sprinkled with scarlet buds, and the very stripes of the rag carpet were suggestive of sunshine and cheerful thoughts. And Mrs. Drayton herself, one of those plump, motherly, good-natured souls who are born to make home happy, was setting the table with white and blue-edged cups and saucers that had belonged to her grandmother before her. The bread was whiter than snow, the applesauce was flavored with cinnamon and a freshly baked loaf of "cup-cake" occupied the centre of the feast.

She was reaching up for a little jar of home-made pickle, when a pair of strong arms encircled her waist, and a handsome bearded face appeared on the level with her own.

"My goodness gracious!" said Mrs. Drayton, "how you frightened me! But I do think, Harry, you get more harumscarum every day."

He lifted her lightly to the floor. "Do you want any more eggs, mother?" he asked, "there are plenty in the barn!"

"I've got enough for to-day," said Mrs. Drayton, pouring the tiny pickled cucumbers into the plate.

"Rosalie takes omelets, you know," mischievously suggested the young man.

A frown darkened Mrs. Drayton's face.

"Harry," she said, "you've made a mistake!"

"Have I, mother dear? But you will find that I have not!"

"Rosalie Hartley is a selfish, heartless coquette?" cried Mrs. Drayton, excitedly.

"Mother, hush!" said the young man, tenderly putting his hand over her mouth. "She has promised to be my wife."

"Oh, Harry! Harry!"

"It is so, mother dear,—and you must learn to love her for my sake. You will soon find how completely you are mistaken in your estimate of her character, and she will be like a daughter to you!"

Mrs. Drayton sat down, still with the pickle fork in her hand, and began to cry.

Now there was nothing in the wide world that made Harry Drayton feel so uncomfortable as tears. A whole dictionary full of remonstrances would not have melted him like one of those crystal drops.

"Didn't you say there was a leaky spot over the kitchen chimney, mother?" said he. "If I go up and look at it now I can perhaps see where the trouble is."

And, thus speaking, he hurried away. Mrs. Drayton looked after him with tearful eyes, as she shook her head doubtfully.

"There never was a better son," said she. "If he had only selected Celandine Hall!"

Poor Mrs. Drayton! When she took the two pretty factory girls to board, just to earn money enough for a new parlor carpet, she had not dreamed that she was setting a trap to catch Harry's true and loyal heart. To be sure it had once or twice occurred to her mind that little Celandine Hall, with her soft voice and dove-like eyes and the "handy ways" that she had about the house, would make a very acceptable daughter-in-law, but Rosalie Hartley,—the brilliant, saucy brunette, with her loud, ringing laugh, her cheap jewelry, her abject following of the latest devices of the fashion plates, the subroso flirtations which she conducted with the foreman of the factory, the good-looking young miller down town, the handsome carriage-maker who was building the big house under Ransom Rock, and her untidy fashion of leaving Celandine to care for the room which they occupied in common—all these things were an abomination to her mother-soul.

"Why is it," she said to herself, in a sort of desperation, "that sons always select the women for wives that their mothers most dislike? I'm almost sure that Rosalie paints, although I never could detect her at it—and there were only three buttons on her boots yesterday. A real womanly woman is as tidy with her boots as with her gloves. And Mrs. Jessup told me yesterday that she was flirting disgracefully with Mr. Peckman, that Spaniard faced foreman at the factory. What can Harry possibly be thinking of to trust his future to the care of such a frivolous creature as this?"

Even as these reflections passed incoherently through her mind, Rosalie's shallow laugh echoed through the hall—Miss Hartley had once been told that she had a musical laugh, and had ever after that lost no opportunity in airing its sweetness!

"Is tea almost ready, Mrs. Drayton?" she asked putting her pretty blonde head into the room. "I am to go out this evening, and we are to be early!"

"It will be ready very soon," said Mrs. Drayton, so coldly that Rosalie, springing up two steps at a time, audibly remarked to her companion that "something had put the old lady out!"

Celandine Hall followed more quietly into a large, airy room that was dedicated to the use of the two factory girls.

"Goodness me!" cried Rosalie, with a start, "What is that strange rustling noise overhead? Is the house haunted?"

Celandine smiled. "I suppose it is nothing more serious than rats in the garret!" she said. "Do, Rosalie, hang your waterproof cloak up, instead of throwing it on the floor! There, the noise has ceased now!"

Nor was it at all strange. For that Harry Drayton, who had contrived to twist and writhe his six feet of humanity into the merest cranny of a space under the eaves, in search of the leaky place in the roof, was even now considering whether he had better twist himself back again—an undertaking not quite so easy as it might at first appear, or keep quiet until the girls should have gone down stairs.

"They'll laugh at me," he thought. "They are always laughing, bless their hearts. I think I'll preserve my incognito. It will only be a minute or two before they go down to tea."

Rosalie gave a tremendous yawn as she twisted up the yellow luxuriance of her hair, little reckoning that her affianced lover was separated from her only by a frail thickness of lath and plaster!

"How is that Greek knot, Celandine?" she asked. "I want particularly to have it look nice to-night. Rudolph likes my hair in the ancient classic style."

"Rosalie," said Celandine Hall, gravely, "does Harry know where you are going to-night?"

"No, you goose," said Rosalie. "Why should he? I shall tell him I am going to a sacred concert with Polly Wright and her sisters."

"But he will want to go with you."

"Then I shall find some pretext to ut nim off."

"Rosalie," cried Celandine, "is it right for you to go to a party under Rudolph Peckham's escort, when you are engaged to Harry Drayton?"

"You don't suppose I am going into a nunnery, just because I happened to be engaged?" said Rosalie, pertly.

"Rosalie —," began Celandine, indignantly.

"Now don't go on lecturing me," said Rosalie, waxing impatient. "I have promised Harry Drayton, not because I love him, but because I am tired and sick of the drudgery of this endless factory work. Harry Drayton is a country lout—not half so polished and charming as Mr. Peckman—but he's better than no husband at all. And Rudolph will be my lover still, like those dear Platonic creatures in the French novels, because, you know—"

At this moment, however, there was a sudden crash from overhead. The plaster of the ceiling came down in a limey shower of pieces, directly into Miss Hartley's rouge pots and balm-of-beauty; and Harry Drayton, who in the agony of his mind, had ventured himself a little further than he had intended, descended most unexpectedly into their midst.

Rosalie screamed hysterically. Celandine looked as if she did not know whether to laugh or cry. Harry Drayton sat up and rubbed his elbow-joints.

"I am sorry to startle you, ladies," said he; "but upon my word, I couldn't help it."

And he then explained to them the precise nature of the dilemma in which he had been placed.

"I could't go forward on account of the kitchen chimney," said he; "and when I tried to back myself gracefully out, the ceiling gave way and down I came. And my cellar is full of rain from the leak in the roof, and I think I've swallawed about a pint of lime-dust."

Rosalie turned first scarlet then white.

"You were up there over our heads," she said, "in the garret corner."

He nodded, calmly.

"I am sorry to say—yes," he answered. "I regret to be considered a 'country lout,' Miss Hartley, but as I don't approve of the Platonic system of love and lovers, I must beg to abdicate in favor of Mr. Peckham! And now, if you will allow me to retire, I'll send up little Tim, the cowboy, with a basket and broom to remove some of the superfluous dust and lime from your floor."

Miss Hartley wept and bewailed herself stormily, but she went with Mr. Peckham to the party, nevertheless—and Celandine stayed at home to sew buttons on the beauty's boots.

While Harry, as he unfolded the newspaper which had come by the evening mail, remarked incidentally:

"Oh, by the way, mother—that engagement of mine with Rosalie is broken off!"

Mrs. Drayton's face lighted up.

"Really and truly, Harry," cried she.

"Yes, really and truly, mother. I don't think we should have suited each other at all! But don't you want to hear how comically it happened?"

And he told her about the leak in the roof.

Miss Hartley changed her boarding place the next week, but little Celandine remained. And Mrs. Drayton is already beginning to flatter herself that perhaps Celandin may be her daughter-in-law after all. Who knows how love might weave his warp and woof?

Surprised at His Ignorance.

In the elegant drawing room of a Cincinnati pork merchant's mansion a large company was assembled. All the luxury that wealth could command contributed to the gratification of the guests. Upon a blue satin divan the pork merchant's daughter, gorgeous in silks and pearls and diamonds, was conversing with a friend. Presently her father approached and said:

"Pauline, I want to say a word to you."

The girl arose and accompanied her parent to the seclusion of a bay window.

"Pouline," began the old man, "there's a couple of Cleveland dudes in the dining room having a hot talk about Copernicus. I was afraid they were going to ask me to get out and come to you. Now, tell me, who was Copernicus?"

"Oh, father!" exclaimed Pauline, "how could you be so ignorant? Why, any school boy knows who Copernicus was. He sailed from Palos, Spain, on the 3d of August, 1492, and discovered America the following October."

The venerable purveyor of swine gazed exultingly at his daughter a moment and then said, with a suggestion of sadness in his tone:

"Pauline, my child, if I had your brains I might have been a United States Senator from Georgia."

From the New Orleans Picayune.

In a cozy little cottage in Yazoo City lives the first newspaper woman of this country. Wisteria vines climb over the windows and lowdoorways, and magnolia trees cast grateful shadows over the wide, worn porches. The yellow Yazoo river flows peacefully past the foot of the street, and glimpses of it can be caught now and then through the trees. Here in this quiet house lives Mrs. Harriet N. Prewett the oldest newspaper woman in this country. In 1848 Mrs. Prewett was left a widow, the most important of her possessions being three little children and a weekly newspaper, the Yazoo City Whig, afterward the Banner. For more than fourteen years Mrs. Prewett was editor, proprietor, news editor, agent, bookkeeper and mailing clerk for her spunky little paper. She also kept house, saw that things were tidy at home, and did the sewing and patching, and mending, and knitting for her three children. Her editorials were strong and fearless and exercised strong influence in Mississippi politics.

One of the Bar Harbor stories: They tell a good story of Landlord Roberts, who kept the first hotel at Bar Harbor, some thirty years ago. He woke up one night by hearing some one travel about the house and lighting a candle found one of his guests, in full shirt dress, wandering through the rooms. "What do you want?" said Roberts. "I want to find the hen pen," said the man. "What in thunder do you want of the hen pen at this time of a night?" asked Roberts. "Well," said the man, "you see, I lost my pillow somewhere and I wanted to get into the hen pen and get a feather and make another."

THE ANTI-LIQUOR PARTY.

Address of the State Temperance Prohibition Amendment Association.

At a meeting of the State Constitutional Temperance Amendment Association held at Johnstown, Pa., on the 4th day of September, A. D. 1883, the following resolutions and address were adopted:

Resolved, That the success of our efforts for constitutional prohibition in the past gives gratifying evidence of its complete accomplishment hereafter; and we pledge ourselves to renewed efforts and call on all friends of constitutional prohibition to unite with us in all lawful means to bring about the desired amendment.

Resolved, That the following address shall be published, with these resolutions, explanatory of our views, and, for the purpose of enabling those who have business with the association to deal with its authorized officers, we state that the following persons were chosen at the Convention held in Bellefonte in May last, viz.:

President, Daniel Agnew, of Beaver, Pa.; secretary, John N. Emery, of New Castle, Pa.; treasurer, Elliot E. Swift, of Allegheny, Pa.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The time has come when, in the judgment of the Executive Committee of the State Temperance Prohibition Amendment Association, renewed effort should be made to secure its object in the election of members of Assembly in 1884 favorable to our purpose.

While we regret that the full force of the Prohibition sentiment was not felt in the election of 1882, in consequence of unusual and peculiar circumstances of political excitement and distraction, yet we recognize the great progress it has made, seen in the passage of the constitutional amendment through the House in 1881, and in the flood of petitions sent into the Assembly of 1883, exceeding 400,000 in number of persons. And in the House seventy members were faithful to the cause of good morals and public welfare; while in the Senate many, probably a majority, stood ready to pass the sound prohibition amendment reported by the committee.

It is well known that our association is non-partisan, making no independent party nominations; but relying solely on solid information, sound argument, and the efficiency of organization in the counties of the State through active, zealous and able workers and speakers. It trusts to the spread of correct opinion and conscientious conviction permeating the masses of the people, and through them reaching the election of senators and representatives who will propose a proper form of amendment to the people, leaving it to them to say whether it shall be adopted into the Constitution of the State.

The force of their reasonable mode of proceeding is shown in the organization of over forty counties of the State, as reported to the Convention at Bellefonte in May last. We have great hopes that with the co operation of the other organizations, pursuing different modes yet aiming at the same result and contributing to the formation of sound opinions, the election of members in 1884 will feel the force of this great public measure. Yet we must not be too sanguine. It may take a longer time to propagate the opinions, where the great number to be reached necessarily retards progress. Besides, we have a powerful foe in those whose pecuniary interest is at stake and who have shown a strength of purse and purpose giving them influence in the hall of legislation.

We must not overlook also the opposition of the large cities, whose squares are filled with liquor saloons, resorted to by voters of the lowest class, and whose people of all grades are influenced by social customs unfavorably to prohibition. There is a battling between vice and virtue in such large and mixed populations which gives but little hope of a return of many prohibition members. A few noble exceptions exist to whom we may point with pride. It is evident, therefore, that the true province of our association is, without yielding up the cities, to operate largely in the rural districts, where the tone of opinion and absence of a strong liquor interest leave the people more open to see the consequences of drunkenness, and to perceive a remedy for its evils in the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks.

We believe in popular revolution in ideas as well as in affairs. But these travel slowly, and it takes time to penetrate and change the common mind. It was so with the anti-slavery movement, which, though not controlled by independent party organization, yet contributed to the formation of a sentiment which, when civil strife came, justified abolition as a great war measure. For the same reason, while we do not seek a partisan mode of operation, we recognize with gratification the benefit which other temperance organizations are conferring by diffusing sound temperance opinions.

The opponents of prohibition, especially in the large cities, are apt to think, or at least to assert, that it has made but little progress. This is a mistake, well known to us and proved by the universal tide now moving over the whole Union. Indeed, it is not even confined to this continent, showing that the world is ripening, and universal thought taking in the consequences of drunkenness. The Christian world sees in this progress the hand of Divine Providence; for so long as drunkenness exists millennial peace and virtue can never come. Hitherto, in the slow progress of ideas, drunkenness was viewed rather as a private vice than a public wrong. But the clouds are breaking away, and the vision of the people is growing clearer. The public is beginning to recognize the evil as more hurtful than the direst epidemic. Epidemics are local and temporary. But drunkenness extends into every part of the state, and never ceases. New recruits are constantly filling up the ranks decimated by death. The natural appetite of thirst, stimulated by drink, and ending in drunkenness, is an ever-enduring source. Drunkenness is, therefore, perennial in time, universal in locality, and progressive in numbers, and must continue until the means of indulgence is cut off by controlling the manufacture and sale of intoxicants.

This generality and continuance of drunkenness and it consequences necessarily bring into play the police power of the state, and demand its exercise as far more needful than do lottery offices, noxious trades, gambling houses, brothels, and local and limited nuisances, the suppression of which law and universal opinion justify. The consequences of drunkenness are greater, further reaching and more enduring than those of any epidemic or any of the recognized nuisances. It is the dread parent of disases, libidinous desire, vice, crime, insanity, brutality, accident, suicide, poverty, alienated affections, hereditary taint, idleness, ignorance, social contamination, sorrow, family strife, unhappiness and death. It attacks all the fundamental God-given rights of men, destroying life, liberty, property, happiness and reputation. It consumes the labor, industry, wealth and morals of the state, fills it with pauperism, exhausts its revenues in the maintenance of hospitals, almshouses and insane asylums, and demands the support of criminal courts, police officers, penitentiaries, prisons and work-houses. In short, there is no single vice or act of man whose effects extend so far and last so long and are so destructive of the public welfare. If ever a great public evil demanded the highest police power of the State it is drunkenness. On what grounds of sound reason or theory of political power does the advocate of liquor pronounce the law which would put away the cause of drunkenness an interference with personal liberty, a mere sumptuary law? Its purpose is the preservation of individual life and happiness, and of public morals and welfare and the lessening of public burdens.

Some would remedy the wrong by high priced license. But this is a mere mitigation of the evil, not its remedy. License, high or low priced, is leave to sell; sale means drinking, and drinking means drunkenness. License lays no restriction on the buyer, who buys and drinks without limit. Nothing short of the regulation of the manufacture, as well as the sale, can do this: and this is the purpose of prohibition, which seeks to prohibit intoxicants for drink. The public mind of Pennsylvania has reached a point, after years of trial, where it sees that license fails to restrain drunkenness and that the control of the manufacture and sale of liquors is the only true remedy.

Prohibition will have the support of public opinion, for it cannot be adopted without a vote of the majority of the people. This will be a guarantee for its enforcement. Besides, its enforcement becomes easy, for distilleries, breweries and wine vaults are visible to all eyes, and public officers can be compelled to return them. The revenue system of the United States proves this. But liquors are easily concealed, secret sales are readily made, evasions of the law are difficult to be reached.

Prohibition in reasonable. It is not total privation, but the use of liquors is left for medicines, the arts and purposes of science. It is regulation, not destruction. It prohibits manufacture and sale for drinking alone. And the brewer, distiller and vintner can be held under bonds, sureties and punishments to obey the law.

Remember that it is drunkenness prohibition aims at. It is useless to reason upon temperance. The evil is described by but one plain word—"drunkenness." It is this which brings into view its endless train of ills. It is this vice the liquor interest must be compelled to face, and to advocate, or give up the argument. This it must justify before it can answer prohibition. This, too, is the real lesson the people must learn; for so long as men, liquor and thirst exist together, drunkenness will continue.

Then let all true men and women of Pennsylvania, who have at heart the welfare of their fellow men and the interest of the State, arouse to the necessity of effort to spread the knowledge and influence of prohibition in the election of 1884, that members may be chosen who will propose a proper form of constitutional amendment, to be voted for by the people, the true parties in interest, and the soure of all power.

JOHN N. EMERY, Secretary.
ELLIOT E. SWIFT, Treasurer.

Just because the widow's mite was so highly praised, there are lots of people who pride themselves upon never putting more than a penny into the contribution box. They think that their offering is more than the most liberal gifts of the free givers; and so it is, no doubt, if you are to judge by the effort it takes on the part of the giver.

A Lakeside Musing.

"Do you like apple pie?"

The soft, sighing wind of a dreamy one-light-undershirt and no-suspenders evening in June was kissing the fluffy mass of golden hair that surmounted Ethlyn McNulty's perfectly shaped head, and as she looked trustingly up in the face of the one man in all the wide, wide world to whom had been given the priceless treasure of her girlish, summer resort love, George W. Simpson felt the balm of her doughnut breath on his lips, and knew that, come weal or come woe, be the day radiant with the golden sunshine of fortune, or darkened by the gaunt, haggard figure of despair, there would always be one heart that beat for him alone and one soul to which he could make fast the storm tossed bark of his hopes and go ashore on the wildest kind of a hurrah, secure in the consciousness that upon his return the old scow would be at the dock.

It is to a man of the world—one who has passed the bock-beer springtime of life; who has seen the bright and beautiful visions of youth fade silently away before the cold, biting thermometer-going down-cellar-and-no-winter-pants-in-the-house blasts of adverse fate, and in whose nature cynicism has usurped the place of trustfulness—that the pure and holy love of a woman, about whose cold feet he knows nothing, comes with a force that has something almost terrible in its intensity. To George W. Simpson, who had so long looked upon love as an idyllic dream—the rose colored figment of a disordered imagination—the fact of his deep affection for Ethlyn McNulty came as a revelation—a porter-house steak oasis in the boarding house desert of his existence. And when he knew—when the ruby-red lips had whispered shyly into his large, sumptuous ear the words that to him his love was reciprocated so fully and completely that it looked as if the other side must certainly be bluffing—he had felt a calm, peaceful joy that lifted him above the cold, cruel world, with all its bitter disappointments and despair, and seated him, silent and alone, on the ivory tower of beatified hope. The days since they had plighted their troth beneath the spreading branches of the linden trees that lined the path way leading through the lawn to Distress-Warrant castle had passed in a slow, St. Louis-merchant-in-a hurry fashion that to George W. Simpson was simply agonizing; and now, on the evening before that day on which his hopes were to find glad fruition in wedded bliss, they had met again beneath the lindens to say once more the words that repetition only makes more sweet. Ere the last rays of another setting sun shall again gild the eternal hills and such stray cows as happen to be standing around, a cassocked priest shall make these twain one for life, and George will be twenty dollars loser. This last thought steals over him as he stands there, Ethlyn's arms around his neck, and as it swashes mournfully around the precincts of his soul his thoughts drift back to the happy past when he was a merry, light-hearted boy with a sore toe.

But suddenly the touch of a damask cheek against his own brings the reverie to a close. A pair of bright, sparkling eyes—eyes that will soon be picking out bonnets at his expense—are looking at him, and he fancies that in their depths he sees a tinge of melancholy, a lambient gleam of no-caramels for-three-days that goes to his very heart.

"You are sad, my darling," he says, pressing her closely to the midship rib of his larboard side. "Why do you look so sorrowful?"

"Because," she replies, "you have not answered my question. I asked you if you liked apple pie."

"Yes," he says, "I do. I am deeply enamored of pie in every shape."

Hardly have the words left his lips when Ethlyn's head droops, and presently her little form is shaken by a storm of sobs. George is horror-stricken. He has not felt such a shock since the White Stockings won the game.

"Why do you weep, my precious one?" he asks, bending tenderly over her.

"Because" she answers him, her voice husky with grief, "I cannot make pie."

"Is this true? Are you certain there is no mistake?"

"None, none," Ethlyn moans despairingly. "I cannot cook at all."

"Then," he says, raining a shower of kisses on the upturned face, "you are more precious to me than ever."

St. Petersburg.

A correspondent writes from St. Petersburg: "The larger and more important hotels here could be converted into prisons in an hour, some, even to the very doors, seem hewn out of solid stone. Nobody thinks of laying carpet on 'grand staircases.' You walk on granite. Long and badly lighted corridors lead to rows of rooms in which there is an abundance of furniture, but where the high ceiling, waxed floor, and something not easily described in the appearance of the walls and the general arrangement leave a frigidity on the hotest day. Strong are the staircases, gloomy the corridors; but most suggestive of all, perhaps, is the man who sometimes precedes, sometimes follows you, rattling his keys. The serious phase of hotel life in St. Petersburg, however, is the drainage. The science of hygiene is in its infancy, and I have been witness of arrangements in some of the 'grands' which in England would be considered disgraceful in a common lodging house."

The news that the Concord Summer School of Philosophy has held its last session is not as mournful as some of the preceding horrors of the year, but it will be apt to cause chunks of gloom to settle down in certain spots. It would not have been so discouraging if the philosophers had settled the vexed question of the "Thereness of the Here" before adjourning finally; but this and similar subjects are left for the newspaper editors to straighten out; and the latter have as much as they can attend to in preventing the government from going to ruin once a week. It looks as if the Ego of the Which must go, accompanied by the Thisness of the What.

When Lord Coleridge returns to his native 'eath and writes a book about America, we trust he will not say that Chicago is a larger State than Hoboken; that Louisville is an isthmus that connects California and Hartfort; that the Hudson river is a beautiful city; that the Alleghenies are a lovely archipelago, and that Idaho is the capital of Brooklyn.

"Why—pardon my remarking it—but, my dear old friend, how changed you are. I declare you must have lived very high or very fast to have driven the color out of your hair and the spring out of your step in this fashion."

Looking at the sunset on the river from the grounds of his place up the Hudson, my school chum—who is one of the best known mining experts in the country—answered: "It wasn't fast living did it but dyspepsia and nervous collapse, from over-work. I ought to have stopped years before I did. I was a fool. But who isn't, if you come to that?"

"I am thirty-five years old," writes Mr. Charles H. Watts, of West Somers, Putnam Co., N. Y., "and had suffered from dyspepsia for fifteen years. Went the round of the current remedies, falsely so called. Listlessly and without hope I gave PARKER'S TONIC a trial. The result may be stated in three words: It cured me. I endorse now without hesitation. It is the dyspeptic's refuge.' Mr. G. R Cole, druggist, of Carmel, N. Y., certifies to the truth of Mr. Watts' statement.

HISCOX & Co., proprietors, call especial attention to the fact that this preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be called simply PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior articles under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, we drop the misleading word

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the facsimile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

How Watch Cases are Made.

A plate of SOLID GOLD 14 2-10 karats fine is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this plate the various parts of the cases—backs, centers, bezels, etc. are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving, and engine-turning. The composition metal gives it needed strength, stiffness and solidity, while the written guarantee of the manufacturers warranting each case to wear twenty years proves that it contains all the gold that can possibly be needed. This guarantee is given from actual results, as many of these cases have been worn perfectly smooth by years of use without wearing through the gold.

DUBUQUE, IA., Dec. 14, 1880.

I have used one of your James Boss' Gold Watch Cases for seventeen years. I bought it second-hand and know of its having been used before I got it, but do not know how long. It looks good for ten years longer. Did not suspect it was a filled case until so informed by a jeweler a short time since. I most cheerfully recommend your cases to be all they are represented to be, and more.

TIRED ALL OVER.

What Rested and Refreshed a Weary Man in Memphis.

"No, it never amounted to an acute pain, but continued to be a dull, weary ache in the small of my back," writes Mr. James Thomas, of No. 59 Madison street, Memphis, Tenn. "This was an old experience, and life became dull music. I was tired all over, with pain in the lower limbs, and a habit of lying awake of nights. Recently I tried one of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS and was decidedly relieved within twenty-four hours. It may have been Providence that did the work, but I give the credit to Benson's porous plaster." Mr. Thomas' reverential idea does him credit, but Providence works by agents, and among them Benson's plaster ranks first as an external remedy. It acts quickly in relief and healing, and renders life better worth living. Price 25 cents. Look in the middle of the plaster for the word CAPCINE. Ask your physician about it.

Heavy Failure in Huntingdon.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Sept. 28.—The Huntingdon car and car wheel works, Blain Bros., proprietors, failed. Judgment was entered last evening by the bank for $50,000. Other claims will increase the liabilities to $200.000. The assets are estimated at $200,000. Four hundred employes, who have not been paid for two months, will be thrown out of work. Efforts will be made to tide over the embarrassment so that work can be resumed on Monday.

LATER PARTICULARS.

[A special despatch to Altoona Tribune gives the following additional particulars:]

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Sept. 28.—The consequences attending the financial failure yesterday of Blain Bros., car builders, of this city, greatly exceeds all previous apprehensions. The liabilities of the firm as nearly as can be estimated will reach $400,000, while an appraised value of the real and personal property will amount only to $250,000, although a forced sale of the work would not realize more than $125,000. Two months' wages amounting to $25,000 are now due. The firm has lately adopted the order system of paying its employes, and these orders, partaking of the nature of assigned labor claims, have accumulated in the hands of Huntingdon merchants to the amount of $25,000, the greater portion of which will never be redeemed. The heaviest creditors are possibly Pittsburg and New York parties for supplies, whose claims have not been recorded. Should a sale of the property be made legal questions arising from the distribution of the proceeds will necessitate the appointment of an auditor to adjudicate the claims. At present the greatest forebodings prevail throughout the city, and it is feared several hundred men will leave to obtain employment elsewhere. Three hundrod men are thrown out of employment by this failure. G.

State Legislation.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 28.—In the senate Mr. Gordon offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five senators and seven representatives to whom all apportionment bills shall be referred for the purpose of reconciling the difference between the two houses, so that the legislature may discharge its constitutional obligations and adjourn. Pending the consideration of the resolution, a motion to adjourn was made, but no quorum voted.

A communication for the governor, which was on the President's table, was asked to be read. But it was decided that nothing could be entertained so long as no quorum voted. Finally after a number of dilatory motions at one o'clock the senate adjourned until Tuesday next.

In the house Mr. Jenkins presented a new senatorial bill. The Bierer representative bill was amended slightly, and then passed second reading. Mr. Haseon offered a resolution, which was laid over, instructing the clerk to credit no member with time except when in his seat, after which the house adjourned until Monday at 9 p. m.

Wreck and Loss of Life.

CHICAGO, September 28.—There was a collision on the St. Paul and Duluth railroad this afternoon, twenty-eight miles south of the city A Northern Pacific engine, coming from the Northern Pacific junction to Fondulac, when half way between Greeley and Fondulac, coming down grade, ran into a St. Paul and Duluth freight train. The men on the engines jumped for their lives. Both engines and several cars were badly wrecked. The firemen and others, names not learned, were injured, but not seriously.

Terrific Boiler Explosion.

ALBANY, September 28.—Early this morning the boiler of the steamer J. S. Robinson, which lay at the foot of Westerlo street, exploded with terrific force, killing Captain George S. Warner and Fireman William Cleary, and seriously injuring Fred Tihslar, the engineer, who was blown into the water and narrowly escaped drowning, and W. Durand and M. Ryan, deck hands. Richard Van Zandt, son of Capt. Van Zandt, of the tug Cora, form New Baltimore, lying alongside the Robinson, was also injured. Captain Robinson, of the Hattie M. Betts, was blown from his pilot house on to the wharf and severely injured. The Betts, which lay at the stern of the Robinson, was damaged to the extent of $1,000. The Cora, alongside, was totally wrecked, and the C. P. Grout, lying ahead of the Robinson, had her joinor work carried away and the machinery damaged. The Robinson sank immediately, carrying with it the body of Cleary, the fireman.

Three Negroes Hung.

CHATHAM, Va., September 28.—Sawnee Younger, Reuben King, and Isaac Vance, young negroes, were hung here to-day for the murder of William F. Sheppard last month. The execution was private. Only about fifteen persons witnessed the scene. The drop fell at 12.20. Younger's neck was broken. The other two died from strangulation. All three protested their innocence to the last. A detachment of the Pottsylvania guards acted as escort, and did guard duty. Quite a large crowd was in the vicinity of the place of execution but there was no disorder.

A Quarrel among Spiritualists.

ERIE, Sept. 26.—Trouble began in the Spiritualist camp here to-day. Rev. Moses Hull is pastor of the Spiritualist society and Hugh Jones is president. Jones is his pastor's landlord. Last week Hull received a call from the Spiritualists of Cleveland and accepted it. This morning Jones seized his pastor's goods for four months' rent, but it appears that the lease for Hull's house is a contract between Jones and the Spiritualist society, they having agreed to provide the Spiritualist priest with a house. Hull's friends now propose to sue the society for the back rent and, as Jones is president, to attach his goods for the rent of his own house.

Only Three Jewish Houses Left Standing.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 26.—Details of the recent anti-Jewish rioting at Nowomoskowsk, in the Province of Ekaterinoslav, have been received. Only a synagogue and three Jewish houses escaped demolition and two hundred families were rendered homeless. Order was restored after five rioters had been killed and thirty arrested. The trouble originated in the discovery that a Russian church had been plundered, which act was attributed to the Jews.

A Big Mass Meeting.

SCRANTON, Sept. 27.—The united Irish societies of northeastern Pennsylvania held an enthusiastic mass meeting to-day at Mountain park, a short distance from Wilkesbarre. Addressess were delivered by Alexander Sullivan, president of the Irish national league of America; Representative Hines and District Attorney Connelly, of Scranton. Ten thousand persons were present and the meeting was a great financial success.

The Franco-China War.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—Advices from French sources dated Hanoi, September 16, state that the Black Flags have abandoned Sontay and the villages of Pkung, Lugne and Day, and retired to the left bank of Red river. Several Mandarins have given in their submission to the French authority through Harmand, the French civil commissioner. The French forces will undertake no offensive operations at present.

Forty Thousand People at a Fair.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—The attendance at the State Fair to-day was estimated by the management at 40,000. The judging in the show ring was continued and this afternoon two races were trotted, the first of which was for stallions, free for all, and the second for two-years-olds. The first race was won by Monroe Chief, best time, 2.21¾, and the second race was won by Balaklava, best time, 2.45¾.

Judge Hoadly Goes Home.

PHILADELPHIA, September 28.—Judge Hoadly, Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio, left for Cleveland this evening. He will speak there Monday and during next week will deliver addresses in Sandusky and Toledo. The judge expresses himself as greatly improved in health.

Fatal Collision.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., September 28.—Reports have been received here of a collision on the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad this morning, near Chaska, in which four persons were killed and several injured. The particulars have not yet been received.

Light Snow.

CHICAGO, September, 28.—At Minneapolis a light snow is falling, but melting as fast as it touches the earth. The weather is cold and chilly.

DETROIT, Mich., September 28.—There was snow at St. Ignac and Cheyboygan this morning.

Forty Chinnamen Killed.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 30.—An explosion last evening at the California powder works, at Steges Station, the scene of several recent disasters, resulted in the death and horrible mangling of forty Chinese out of a working force of forty-two. One white man is reported injured.

A Verdict Reached.

STRATFORD, Sept. 30.—A verdict has been returned in the Rose Ambler murder case that has aroused the heartiest disgust of every man in Fairfield county, except William Lewis and the jurymen who signed it. It is as follows:

Rose Clark Ambler came to her death by being choked to death by some person or persons to the jury unknown, but from William Lewis' relations with her in the past, and from his testimony, and from his conduct since her death, and from other evidence we think suspicion points to him.

This was in the face of the strong address by the coroner to the jury, in which he reviewed the evidence that pointed toward Lewis as the guilty party, especially that part, which he particularly emphasized, submitted by Norman Ambler, the divorced husband of the murdered girl, who testified in detail of the relationship existing between his wife and Lewis; the testimony of Powell about Lewis telling him that he intends to rent the house he was building, and the testimony of the grocer Durand. If they found that Lewis told him of the murder in Birmingham before it was discovered in Stratford, the coroner said then they could find that he had a guilty knowledge of the crime.

Lewis has not been arrested, but Detective Wood is reported to be shadowing him. Lewis took the news coolly. "Well," said he, "if they want to arrest me they can. I believe I'd rather be tried by the higher court than to have the thing left this way." His voice was shaky, however, as he spoke. His family feel keenly the suspicion expressed in the jury's verdict.

An Express Train Attacked.

KANSAS CITY, September 29.—News has been received here of a train robbery on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, at or near Coolidge, Kansas, 470 miles west of here, about two o'clock this morning. The train was the regular east-bound passenger train, which left Denver last night, due here to-night. Coolidge is a small cattle station and aside from the telegraph operator is almost uninhabited. As the train pulled out from Coolidge three men appeared and ordered the engineer, Hilton, to stop. He refused and was instantly shot dead. The fireman, Fodie, was also shot through the breast and badly hurt, though not fatally. The men then assailed the express car, but Samuel Peterson, the express messenger, was prepared for them and made such a vigorous fight that the robbers were driven off. Finding that the passengers in the train were aroused and themselves likely to be worsted, the robbers retreated, having failed to secure the treasure they were evidently after. Armed men are now in pursuit of the gang.

Jay-Eye-See Beats St. Julian.

NEW YORK, September 30.—The largest crowd which ever assembled at a trotting track in this section was present yesterday at the Gentlemens' park, Fleetwood, to witness the race between Jay-Eye-See, of Wisconsin, and St. Julian, of California. The betting on the first heat pools was $100 to $50 on St. Julian, but for the second heat the betting changed to $120 to $70 in favor of Jay-Eye See. There was no betting in the third heat, it having been stopped by the authorities. The heavy track made the time slow. Following is the summary:

Gentlemen's Driving Park, New York, September 29.—Special purse of $5,000.

J. I. Case, Racine, Wisconsin, br. g. Jay-Eye-See by Dictator	1 1 1
Orrin Hickok, San Francisco, California, b. g. St. Julian by Volunteer	2 2 2

Best time, 2.18½.

After Fourteen Years.

VICKSBURG, Miss., September 30.—On July 25, 1869, George Westmoreland, colored, shot and killed Constable Thomas H. Cox, of this city, while he was reading to him a warrant for his arrest on the charge of stealing $125 worth of clothing. Westmoreland escaped immediately by a skiff across the river to Louisiana and has not been heard from until recently, when George M. Klein, a banker in this city, received a letter from a negro in Brinkley, Arkansas, saying Westmoreland was there. He turned it over to Marshall John Groome who, after obtaining a requisition from the Governor of Mississippi for his man, dispatched Special officer William Price at once to Brinkley. Yesterday Marshall Groome received a telegram from Price that he was enroute to Vicksburg with the prisoner. After fourteen years of freedom this murderer is captured and will be punished.

Mr. Blaine's Retirement.

WASHINGTON, September 30.—The Post to-day will say, concerning Mr. Blaine's leasing of his new house to Mr. Leiter, of Chicago: "Mr. and Mrs. Blaine proposed to spend the winter in Washington, but owing to the cessation of Mr. Blaine's official relations, they prefer to live more quietly and to entertain less than was intended when the leased residence was built. This condition is also construed as an additional assurance that Mr. Blaine is out of active politics and not likely to reenter the arena at a call of any party or convention.

Lord Coleridge at a Murder Trial.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Lord Chief Justice Coleridge visited the Criminal Court this morning and spent half an hour listening to the proceedings in a murder trial, which happened to be in progress. He was then introduced on 'Change. He visited the State Fair in the afternoon and in the evening dined with Emory A. Storrs

Run Down by a Train.

ERIF, Pa., Sept. 30.—Yesterday afternoon the express train on he New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad ran down a buggy containing Mrs. Stafford, mother of Collector of Customs Stafford; Mrs. Smith, her daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foust. The occupants of the vehicle were hurled from it with a terrible force, fatally injuring Mrs. Stafford. Her companions received broken limbs and ribs, and Mrs. Foust had an eye forced out. All were dangerously injured.

A Cincinnati Murder.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 30.—Late last night Peter Donbecker and August Fink quarrelled in a saloon at the corner of Findley street and the canal about an alleged insult that Fink had offered a lady who was with Donbecker. The dispute was continued on the street and when Fink reached the bank of the canal Donbecker pushed him into the water and he was drowned. The murder was arrested.

Crushed to Death.

OIL CITY, September 30.—As the four o'clock passenger train on the Buffalo, New York and Pittsburg was coming into town last evening, Mrs. Ed. Ricker stepped from the Lake Shore track to avoid another train and was struck by the Buffalo, New York and Pittsburg train and instantly killed. She leaves a husband and seven children.

THE Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Pennsylvania will hold its annual convention this year in the beautiful town of Bellefonte, beginning on the 10th of October and continuing three days. There is no better temperance organization in the field. The organization has already accomplished much good. If the women of Pennsylvania live up to their responsibilities and their opportunities it will do far more in the future.—Altoona Tribune.

CETEWAYO offers to surrender himself to the British and to say no more about his royal claims if they will only take good care of him and protect him from his enemies. He would probably like to return to the flesh-pots of London, but the government will hardly give him the chance. It is too anxious to get him off its hands for good and all.

THE Greenbackers of Massachusetts have undoubtedly made good their claim to the title "soft money men" by their nomination of Butler for Governor. Politically considered, a softer thing couldn't have been done by any body of men for a man who had publicly denounced them as an effete organization, a party whose mission had been ended.

JUDGE JONATHAN DIXON, the Republican nominee for governor of New Jersey, in character and attainment would make an ideal Governor. He stands among the foremost in his profession, and his reputation is spotless.

MRS. LANGTRY will return to London this week, sailing thence to New York on October 6.

A Wedding in the West.

On the 12th of September an event occurred in Waverly, Coffee Co., Kansas, which will doubtless interest some of our readers, from the fact that one of the chief participants in it is well known in Centre county. A marked copy of the Waverly News, which has been received, gives us the particulars. It was the marriage of Miss Minnie Sponsler, of Agricola, Kansas, to Mr. Samuel Woodworth, of Mineral Point. The bride is the granddaughter of Thomas Hutchison, formerly of Potter township, this county.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Mann, of Central City, in a very impressive and appropriate manner, after which the friends present offered their congratulations with a heartiness that showed how they are both appreciated.

The bride was attired in an elegant brown silk, and the groom in the conventional black suit. Their attendants were Mr. Laban Woodworth, brother of the groom, and Miss Clara Zehring, of Johnson county, Kansas.

They were the recipients of numerous beautiful, useful and costly presents, and the occasion was one to be remembered by all the participants. After partaking of a sumptuous dinner, the guests enjoyed themselves in singing, conversing and various amusements.

One pleasant feature of the entertainment was a serenade by the juvenile part of the company, led by Miss Edith Olson, of Williamsburg, which was enjoyed by all.

In the evening the wedding party drove to the residence of Mr. John Baird, of Mineral Point, where a reception was held in honor of the happy couple and their friends.

—The Messrs. Goldsmith, of the Bee Hive, requests us to state that their stores will be closed October 11th, in honor of the Jewish holidays.

Notes and Personals from Snow-Shoe.

Henry Beck, ex-commissioners' clerk, is bookkeeping at Boak's new store.

Jno. Uzzle's new barn is considered one of the attractions of Snow Shoe It cost $5,000, and there isn't a dwelling house in the town that will compare with it for style. The building is weather-boarded from top to bottom, and the doors are panneled and painted in fancy design. Ed Smith, of Milesburg, put on the paint.

Mr. Wm. Stewart is making some needed improvements on his house which will greatly improve appearances.

Mr. George Shirer, postmaster of this place, is a most accommodating and careful official. Matter which passes through his hands reaches the proper destination.

The hotel presided over by Mr. Harvey Witherite is growing in favor favor with the people of this section. It is a good place to put up at. Mr. Wm. Brown, of Bellefonte, attends to the "mixology" department.

Mr. Cam. Boak has built himself a handsome new dwelling on the outskirts of town, on the pike road leading to Gillantown. The location is pleasant.

Mr. Jno. Uzzle recently purchased a "Jenny Lind" two-seated carriage from Daniel Garman, of Bellefonte. and now prides himself on driving the toniest turnout in the city.

Mr. T. R. Budinger, the baker, formerly of Williamsport, is baking good bread and pies, and consequently doing a good business.

The Vanderbilt House, situated about two miles out of Snow Shoe, and of which Mr. Jno. Delaney is proprietor, is doing a good business and making money for its landlord. The name of the hotel appears on three sides of the building in large, broad letters, and if anyone passes by without seeing it it will not be the proprietor's fault.

Mr. A. J. Hershey is giving good satisfaction as boss-sawer in Crider's Co. mill. He is just the man for the position.

Orvis & Williams' coal lands on west side of R. R. going towards Moshannon, have developed one of the finest veins of coal in the region. The vein is 4 feet 2 inches thick and there is no doubt a barrel of money in it for its owners. Mr. David Butts is surveying for a new railroad to open up the mines.

Hon. Jno. H. Orvis, president judge of this 49th judicial district, has been canvassing in Snow Shoe and vicinity for subscribers to the Centre Democrat, and has succeeded in increasing the list by a dozen or so.

Twenty-five car loads of coal are shipped per day from the mines of James Sommerville & Co. This looks like business.

Dr. Thompson has been on the sick list for several weeks and unable to attend to his business. During his illness Dr. Cambridge, of Unionville, will administer to the wants of his patients.

The wife of Michael Haley has been critically ill with hemorrhage of the lungs. Dr. Glenn, the attending physician, called in Dr. Harris, of Bellefonte, for consultation last week. At last accounts the lady was thought to be improving.

Two Millions for Wild Beasts.

During the past nineteen years, Adam Forepaugh, whose great show comes to Bellefonte Oct. 11, has expended $2,000,000 in the capture, and also in the importation and purchase from the Old World's Zoological Gardens, of almost every species of animal life that walks, flies, swims or crawls, and to-day he owns and exhibits the most gigantic Menagerie in the world. He has every year, and this season in particular, expended more money for single rare animals than many other managers expend in equipping their entire exhibitions, as witness his great herd of twenty-five Asiatic and African elephants, and the recent purchase of the first, the only genuine, man-faced gorilla, veritable zebra, giant giraffe and other equally rare foreign animals. As soon as the capture of this gorilla became known, all the zoological gardens of the Old World endeavored to secure it, and in order to secure the prize for his most perfect, colossal Menagerie he quickly outbid all competitors, and it now adorns the wild beast collection of the largest exhibition in the world. Still another triumph in the field of zoological exploration was his recent purchase of the first, the only, the veritable Tamanour, or Great Guinea Ant-Bear; its wonderful conformation, curious habits and extreme rarity render it the most extraordinary quadrupedal curiosity within the borders of the United States. The crowning triumph, and the cap-sheaf of his mammoth collection of wild beasts, is the recent purchase of one monster single-horned and one double-horned rhinoceros. No exhibition under the sun ever before exhibited at the same time, in one collection, the single and double-horned species of these, the biggest born on earth. These huge, unwieldy, Biblical animals in themselves constitute a feature pronounced to be well worth all that is required to purchase an admission ticket to the entire collossal collection of wild beasts, great triple circus, hippodrome, museum and curiosity show.

Disporting in massive iron tanks are seen Arctic ocean sea lions, sporting, bellowing and cavorting precisely as they appear in their native element. There has been added to his great collection the wonderful zoological rarities, white camels and jet black dromedaries, and the only pure white polar bears now on exhibition in this country; apes, baboons and monkeys, the wonderful African hairy horned horse, ten majestic lordly lions, and two recently-born baby elephants; trained tigers, bisons, bovines; performing hyenas, leopards and a great stud of trick and menage horses, and the largest collection of tigers, leopards, hyenas, bears and carnivorous creatures ever seen in any menagerie or zoological garden on this continent. Also, magnificent and beautiful plumaged ostriches, cassowaries and emeus, huge pythons and anacondas.

—Never take offence. A tramp was arrested the other day for taking a fence. Better take some money and a market basket and buy groceries at Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

A Musical Medley.

There is either a feast or a famine in Bellefonte so far as band music is concerned and Saturday afternoon last was one of the occasions of a feast and a glorious one at that. At about 2:30 o'clock a triumphal parade of four of Centre county's finest band organizations enlivened the chief thoroughfares of Bellefonte. To the lively measure of excellent music they marched to the fair ground, where under the skillful leadership of Prof. Jacob Guth, formerly of Philadelphia and now of Pleasant Gap, they executed several excellent selections to the entertainment of a pleased audience. On their return through town the united bands paused in front of the Bush House where two or three airs of an inspiring character were given. The admirable time kept by the many musicians was particularly noticeable and the volume of musical melody floated thro' space and into the deepest depths of our susceptible heart so softly, deliciously and effectively that—well, we couldn't possibly keep still and our feelings and feet almost ran away with us. These bands have names, but after listening to their music it seems almost sacrilege to name them with such homely titles as Lemont, Farmers' Mills, Milesburg and Pleasant Gap; nevertheless, those are the titles by which they are known. The object of the concert was to display the skill which has been attained by them under the leadership of Prof. Guth. We had the pleasure of interviewing that gentleman. He is delightfully foreign; can neither speak nor understand English, and Mr. William Lyon kindly acted as our interpreter. Prof. Guth is exceedingly obliging and entirely abandoned to all else save music and its indescribable charms. We wish him and his promising pupils—the bands—that degree of success which always rewards diligent effort.

—Better than a fortune—Two of 'em. But to purchase groceries of Harry Teats & Co is equal to a fortune.

—Prosperity flatters a man, but adversity flattens him, and if he would have the former he should buy groceries of Harry Teats & Co.

Colored Men in Convention.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 24.—The colored national convention, which opened in this city at noon to-day, is a notable gathering of representative men of the colored race. About two hundred and forty-three delegates and a large number of white and colored spectators were present. The names of Rev. A. M. Queen, of Louisiana; C. H. Taudy, of Missouri; Fred. Douglass, of Washington; George L. Reffin, of Massachusetts, and Dr. Fitz Butler, of Kentucky, were mentioned in elaborate nominating speeches for chairman. The name of Mr. Douglass was withdrawn at the earnest request of his friends with the intention of pushing him for permanent chairman. Mr. Green was elected and was introduced to the convention as a martyr of the race. In accepting the nomination Mr. Green said he felt it an honor to preside temporarily over such a meeting on a soil made hallowed by Henry Clay and his successor, Cassius M. Clay.

An Explosion at Woolwich Arsenal.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The rocket factories in the arsenal at Woolwich exploded to-day, destroying many buildings. The loss of life is serious. The explosion was caused by fire in the main building, which included the laboratory. The building was destroyed within half an hour after the fire broke out. It contained an immense number of war rockets, which were filled with destructive missiles. The latter flew in all directions; many being projected to and rolling upon the other side of the Thames. The explosives caused fearful destruction to property throughout the town and in the surrounding district. The fire was extinguished at noon, when the rockets ceased their explosions. Old soldiers declare the explosions of the rockets during the fire was as frightful as if occurring in actual siege. Two bodies of the victims of the explosion have been found. Some of the war rockets were projected a distance of five miles One of them went through the wall of the arsenal and another struck the artillery barracks.

Russia's Preparations for War.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—A dispatch from Vienna states that Russia is making extensive military preparations along the Austrian and German frontiers. Tenders have been asked for 36,000 military beds. All the railways have been ordered to have military cars in readiness. A list has been made of the private steamers in the Black Sea and their captains have been ordered to prepare for the transportation of ammunition, troops and provisions. These vessels have ceased executing private orders and the carriage of corn is thus interrupted. Two army corps have been distributed between the Vistula and Bug rivers. A list has been made of all persons who in the event of war will be deported from Poland to the interior of Russia.

Jewelry Store Robbed.

DETROIT, Sept. 24.—It was discovered yesterday that the jewelry store of F. Rolshoven had been robbed the night before of $15,000 worth of goods as near as can be estimated by a hasty inventory of the stock. The work was done by experienced burglars, and excites some astonishment, as the store is on Woodward avenue, one of the leading business streets of the city. There was an attempt to crack the safe, but after a considerable time evidently spent on it they gave it up. A large amount of the most valuable goods thus escaped.

An Heroic Engineer's Fate.

AKRON, Sept. 24.—John Bull, the engineer of a passenger train on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad, died to-day from the injuries received by a collision with a freight train at Tallmadge on Saturday night. He could have saved himself by jumping, but he remained at his post to save the passengers, reversed his engine and set the air brakes. He then put on full steam and started the engine ahead. It broke loose from the cars. The passengers were unhur. He was the oldest engineer on the road.

Assaulted on the Highway and Robbed.

ASHLAND, Pa., Sept. 23.—While Jabez Hayne, land agent of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company, was returning home last evening from a collecting tour, and when reaching Little Mine run, a suburb of town, he was suddenly pounced upon by a number of disguised men, who knocked him down and robbed him of $300, when he was left to depart. No clue has as yet been discovered as to who the guilty parties were.

The Long Island Oyster Product.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Sept. 23.—Oysters in the beds along the shore of Long Island Sound are fine in quality and large in quantity. On the Atlantic shore they are failure, being neither plentiful nor good. The once famous Prince's Bay oysters have this year been attacked by a disease which has periodically affected them.

A Split Among New York Democrats.

SYRACUSE, September 23.—The Democrats elected delegates yesterday from Onondaga to the Democratic State Convention. There was a bitter contest, resulting in two conventions in each district and two sets of delegates.

No Vandalism by the President's Party.

HELENA, Montana, Sept. 23.—The reports circulated by certain visitors in the Yellowstone Park of acts of vandalism by the soldiers of the President's escort during the late trip are emphatically denied by Governor Crosby, of Montana, a member of the party, who says General Sheridan's orders were strict in this regard, also as to the unnecessary killing of game; that the orders were carried out to the letter in every respect.

The Oregon's Fast Time.

LONDON, September 22.—The new Guion Line steamer Oregon made a trial trip to-day, during which she attained a speed of twenty knots an hour. At a luncheon which was given in the afternoon, after the cruise, Mr. Fearce, the manager for John Elder & Co., who built the Oregon, said he should never consider his work accomplished until he had built ships able to cross the Atlantic in five days.

A Long Ride on Bicycles.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Messrs. W. H. Nixon and W. E. Guthrie, of the Chambersburg. (Pa) Bicycle Club, have arrived here after an extraordinary run of 130 miles by way of Winchester, Va., Williamsport, Md., and Martinsburg, W. Va., over a rough, mountainous country much of the journey. They left Chambersburg last Thursday morning and arrived here early yesterday morning. They start at noon to-morrow for Philadelphia, to attend the meet there on the 29th, thence home by way of Harrisburg.

Severe Storms on the Lakes.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The schooner Sarepta, laden with coal and merchandise, was driven ashore this morning, east of Fair Haven, while trying to make that port. The crew is safe. The sloop Tounst was driven ashore here at 2 o'clock last night. The crew was saved. It was the heaviest gale that ever visited this vicinity.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 25.—A disastrous storm occurred here late last night the wind at one time attaining the velocity of 54 miles an hour. Trees and signboards were blown down, and the unfinished round house of the Rochester and Pittsburg railroad on the lake shore was leveled with the ground. A fine house on Ferry street was entirely demolished, and large panes of plate glass in several stores were broken.

During the storm on Lake Erie the schooner York State went down with all the hands. The crew consisted of Captain Hayes and six men. The schooner was loaded with 16,000 bushels of wheat.

Thought of Unsound Mind.

NEW YORK, September 25.—A man this afternoon entered the British consulate and fired two shots apparently without any definite aim and without hitting any one. He was immediately arrested. He gave the name of John A. Feeny and said he had came from Canada to kill the British consul who had been libelling his character. It was evident that he was of unsound mind. He is an Irishman about 36 years of age.

In court Feeny acted in a wild andexcited manner shouting out that he wanted to kill the villians who had accused him of crime and published stories against his character. He told a reporter that he had been arrested in Dublin without cause and locked up in Kilmanham jail; that he was subsequently taken in a coach to Liverpool and placed in a steamer and landed in Toronto. No doubt of his insanity is entertained.

His Path Strewn with Flowers.

PROVIDENCE R. I., Sept. 25.—Many thousands of persons were present at Bristol to-day to witness the laying of the cornerstone of the Burnside memorial hall. President Arthur arrived at noon and was welcomed by a salute by the artillery. He was driven to the residence of Colonel Colt, where his path was strewn with flowers by twenty maidens, a repetition of the ceremony of welcome to President Monroe in 1817 at the same place. After a short stay within the house the president joined the procession at the site of the memorial building. The president and party alighted and accepted seats reserved for them on the platform. The ceremony of laying the corner stone was performed by the grand lodge of Masons, after which Judge S. N. Colt delivered an oration.

Battle with a Henhawk.

ROCHESTER, Mass., Sept. 25.—Mrs. Lucy E. Phillips, who resides upon a farm four miles from this place, had an encounter yesterday with a henhawk. For some time she has missed every day one or two of her fowls. Yesterday she saw a large henhawk swoop down among the fowls and grasp one in its talons. Mrs. Phillips ran to the rescue, when the hawk released the hen and attacked the lady. Her clothes were torn and her face, neck, and hands badly lacerated by the bird. After fighting for fifteen minutes, Mrs. Phillips despatched the hawk with a blow from a cart stake. It measured from tip to tip of its wings six feet four inches.

His Ninth Term in Prison.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 24.—Old John Brown, a well-known kleptomaniac, of Fayette county, was to-day sentenced to three years in the Western Penitentiary for larceny. Brown has always been afflicted with a weakness for stealing almost anything he could lay hands on. He has already served eight terms in the Penitentiary, or an aggregate of nearly thirty years.

Reception to a German Evangelist.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The German branch of the Young Men's Christian association gave the Rev. Fredrich von Schluembach, who arrived yesterday morning from Germany, a reception last evening at Association hall. The members of the association gave a vocal and instrumental concert, after which the reverend gentleman delivered a short address on his work and travels in Germany. Two years ago he went to Germany for his health, but for the last year he has been engaged in establishing organizations among the young men of Germany. The principal part of his labors was in Berlin, where he founded an association numbering over 200 young Germans. He brought over under his care thirty-five persons, who will accompany him on Wednesday to Texas, where he has a farm of about 1,000 acres.

Explosion and Panic in a Hotel.

WATERBURY, Conn., Sept. 24.—The Scoville House in this city narrowly escaped destruction by the explosion of a range this morning at 6 o'clock. The cause was the shutting off of the city water. Several employees narrowly escaped death. The building was fired in several places, but the flames were extinguished. A window and a partition were shattered, and the guests rushed into the corridors in their nightclothes. There was great confusion and almost a panic.

Butler Renominated.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. Sept. 26.—The Democratic State convention that met today was not entirely harmonious. The officers of the state committee were made the temporary officers of the convention. Rev. Mr. Simms offered the opening prayer. A motion to nominate General Butler for governor by acclamation was unanimously carried by a rising vote and was followed by cheers.

The ticket was completed as follows: For lieutenant governor, Frederick O. Prince, of Boston; for secretary of state, Charles Mark, of Springfield; for treasurer and receiver, General C. H. Ingalls, of New Bedford; for attorney general, John W. Cummings, of Fall River; for auditor, John Hopkins, of Millburg.

General Butler then entered the hall and the convention rose and cheered him as he was escorted to the platform. After the applause had subsided, he addressed the convention. He began by calling the attention of the convention to the fact that the legislature had opposed all the measures of reform which he had inaugurated and had refused to adopt any of his recommendations. When he came into office he said every state institution was overrunning with corruption and extravagance. His efforts to place in a better condition the state prison, the insurance department and Tewksberry almshouse had been stubbornly fought.

The Louisville Exposition.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 26.—This was "Arkansas day" at the exposition. Governor Berry and nearly three hundred citizens of that state were present. The ceremonies of their formal reception were full of interest. Forty-four hours before, at a place five hundred miles away, a bale of cotton had been picked from the fields and at once sent to the exposition. The cotton was cleaned, ginned, carded, spun, colored, woven cut into a suit of clothing, made up and this afternoon the mayor of Louisville presented the suit to Governor Berry who to-night wore it to the exhibition.

Preferred Death to an Old Dress.

SEYMOUR, Conn., Sept. 26.—Ella Hill, the 14-year-old daughter of George Hill, shot herself through the body with a double barrelled shot gun yesterday morning because her stepmother insisted that she should wear a dress that she had worn the day before. Ella had been out in a storm and got the dress wet and wanted to put on her best dress, and when denied the privilege she looked curiously at her stepmother for a moment, then walked slowly up stairs, and seizing the gun placed the muzzle against her heart and pulled the trigger with her foot. She died in a few moments.

No Money for the Bradford Heirs.

WASHINGTON, Sept 24.—Consul General Merritt, of London, has sent to the State Department a report on the alleged Bradford estate in Great Britain. He says he has received numerous letters from the United States inquiring as to the existence in the vaults of the Bank of England of the sum of $100,000,000, the accumulated principal and interest of the estate of Governor William Bradford, first Governor of Plymouth colony, of whom they claim to be heirs. He says that although he was well aware that the Bradford estate was like scores that had appeared before, he addressed a letter on the subject to the Bank of England and received in reply a statement, which he forwards, in which S. O. Gray, chief accountant, says "There is no unclaimed stock or money recorded in the books of the bank in the name of Governor William Bradford, nor is there, so far as I am aware, any foundation for the assertion that there is."

The Interior Department has information that a great many Indians are suing for peace since Senators have gone west and made speeches to the red man. The Indians may be very wicked, but it is not right to torture them.

The Harvard "annex" for women is eminently successful. Two ladies out of a class of five have become engaged to their teachers, and another is permitting one of the young professors to swing on her father's gate.

Think it Over.

It will only cost you the postage on a letter to write to Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard street, Philadelphia, and get their opinion of your case, if you are suffering from any form of disease which your physician has failed to cure, as consumption, neuralgia, catarrh, rheumatism, etc. State it clearly and they will answer promptly, honestly telling you, in view of all the conditions you state, whether they believe Compound of Oxygen will do you any good. At the same time they will send you documents containing a history of the discovery of this remarkable substance and a large record of cures which have been made during the last thirteen years, from which you will be able to judge for yourself of its claim upon your confidence.

A jewelry firm in New York has just imported the largest diamond ever brought to this country. It is an African stone weighing 102½ carats. It is not known for whom it is intended, but a hotel clerk at Saratoga has been seen at the depot every time a freight train arrives during the past two weeks, and no doubt—but we may be mistaken.

Smith's German Olio don't "scatter" rheumatism; it cures for good.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE

Burlington Hawkeye: With "the old ticket" the old "bread and butter brigade" will probably come to the front once more and clamor for seats at the first table, as in the days of Greely and the watermelon man. It would be pleasant to see the old appetites in the ranks again.

—Prophet Vennor continues to make predictions about the weather, but from several of his prophesies which we read lately we are unable to tell whether next winter will be mild or severe. —We are informed that the ladies who provided the exquisite floral decorations for the Episcopal church on Sunday, September 23, were Misses Richard and Lingle and Mrs. Munson. The efforts of the ladies to beautify the interior of the church and add to the interest of the service deserves the highest commendation, and we hope the comforting consciousness of work well done will induce them to repeat the graceful act.

—The proposed sale of the furnaces and ore properties of the Messrs. Valentine is of the utmost importance to the business interests of this locality. Whether the outcome of the pending negotiations be to place the property in other hands or to form a new and stronger company, reserving a full interest for themselves, it is certain that the importance of the movement challenges the interest of all the business men in this community and the result will be a vast increase in the extent of ore mining and manufacturing in Centre county. It is altogether probable that the coming year will see a furnace erected on the property with from five to ten times the capacity of those at present in operation. We say: Hip, hip, hurrah! welcome to the new order of events!

The Capital of Austria.

TWELFTH LETTER.

VIENNA, AUSTRIA, Sept. 8, 1883.

We have been in Vienna six weeks to-day. We have been so busy and so much occupied that it has been impossible to find time to write letters. Every moment seems precious, and time flies as if on wings. On leaving home Vienna was really our objective point, as here we expected to settle down and do some work in the way of study. We have had our first experience in Vienna at a boarding house, or pension as it is usually called on the continent. Heretofore we have invariably stopped at hotels and as we always ordered our meals we continued to take them as had been our custom at home, that is, a meat breakfast, lunch and dinner. But since coming to our pension we have been obliged to conform to a breakfast without meat. We, however, get an excellent dinner at one o'clock, and at seven o'clock get a supper which is almost as good as the dinner. The breakfast consists of a cup of coffee and a roll. We have a soft boiled egg added to ours because we are Americans. During the entire year the breakfast never varies from the above. We have found it rather monotonous during the past six weeks not to have any variety at all for breakfast, but possibly after an experience of 365 mornings the monotony may wear away. However, the rolls and coffee are quite as good as they were at our grand centennial. Our landlady, Frau Pohl, is as kind as she can be, and as the house is full of Americans, we find it very pleasant, indeed.

Vienna has fully come up to our expectations, and for a medical man, especially, it is a great privilege to be here. The Algemeine Krankenhaus, or general hospital, is the largest in the world, and has beds for three thousand patients.

Besides an immense number of out door patients resort, daily, to the hospital for treatment. The Algemeine Krankenhaus is under the control of the government and is most admirably manged and conducted. The Professors are of world wide reputation, and the material for clinics is immense, so that it is no wonder that Vienna has become such a great centre. There are here to-day medical men from all parts of the world. America furnishes the most of any one country, but England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Italy, Greece, Norway, Sweden, etc., etc., are all represented. The courses which medical men take when coming here are very expensive, but notwithstanding, such is the case, Vienna continues to be as famous as ever, and very attractive to medical men. Aside from its medical feature, Vienna is an attractive and beautiful city. At the last census the inhabitants numbered over a million. As is well known Vienna is the capital of the Austrian Empire. It is situated in a large valley, and is protected on one side by the spurs of the Styrian Alps and Carpathian mountains, and on the other by the Danube. Originally the city was encircled by walls, or fortifications. These walls were not destroyed till 1857. On the very site where once these walls stood there now is to be seen the most beautiful street of the city called the Ring-Strasse. The Ring-strasse is the boulevard of Vienna, and completely encircles the old city. It is one hundred and sixty-five feet wide, and on each side of it there is a double row of trees. The palatial residences, public buildings, hotels and shops on both sides of the Ring-strasse are very handsome. The street architecture of Vienna is very noticeable and affords great pleasure to the eye. The Viennese have attained to great perfection in the handi-crafts of art, and it is surprising to see the great amount of sculpture and ornamentation on the exterior of their handsome buildings. Another feature that makes Vienna so attractive is the music. Every day one or more concerts are taking place. The sublime works of Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven and others are performed by the best artists. The sacred music is particularly fine. The Votio-Kirche, one of the finest churches of the city, is directly opposite our window in a lovely square, and the sweet strains, on Sabbath mornings, that are wafted into our open windows afford us especial pleasure and enjoyment.

—The anniversaries of the Pennsylvania Baptist General Association Educational society and Ministers union will convene at Altoona Monday evening, October 15, and continue through Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Rev. Dr. Peddie, of Philadelphia, will preach the opening sermon on Monday evening. The Educational society will occupy Tuesday. Rev. J. A. Chambers, of Huntingdon, Rev. L. C. Barns, of Pittsburg and Rev. Dr. Stiffler, of Crozer seminary will preach during the meetings.

Seasonable Subjects.

Overcoats are added to the apparel of the average man about town as soon as the first cool air of September sweeps down from the frozen North. The actual degree of cold that may exist does not regulate the matter. The fact that it is fall and that frost whitens the ground in the morning is sufficient to bring out the overcoat. In the spring the cold is usually more intense, the atmosphere more moist and dangerous, and the weather more unreliable. Winter lingers in the lap of spring and water may freeze thick every morning, while snow is flying in the air; but, nevertheless, off the overcoat comes and the owner of it is loth to put it on again even if the mercury touches zero.

The ladies are in a contemplative mood. It is not often that the dear creatures cease their merry chatter and gossip about mere nothings, but nevertheless they are quiet now, only for an instant. The sudden stillness was caused by the finding of a bright crimson leaf on the pavement beneath a great shade tree. It had floated down to be trodden perhaps under foot, but one lady picked it up and has determined to preserve it from destruction. Ah! to think that even the bright, green leaves put on their most glowing colors just before they fall and are mingled with Mother Earth again is enough to arrest our gayety for a time at least.

The ladies are also resolved to avert all the destruction they can before winter comes, and are in the flower garden armed with trowel, hoe, rake and shovel. Some of the blooming plants are transferred to flower crocks and fresh, rich earth put around them. Mere shoots, or branches, are taken from others, while the roots of the plant are covered with straw and leaves, and the beautiful top is left to blossom as long as it will and then to perish. All the shrubbery receives their attention and the ravages of winter are to some extent prevented.

People who have been resting all summer (but editors are not included in the number) are preparing for a fall and winter campaign of work. But newspaper men are compelled to work as hard in the hot days of summer as in the enlivening coolness of winter, and the less other people happen to be doing the more effort they make to stir around, kick up the dust and infuse life into dull routine affairs. Bellefonte, being a sort of a summer resort, has been more favored with events of interest than many other communities during the summer season of '83.

—There is a most outrageous place in the pavement in front of the Logan Hose House which we have neglected to call attention to because we hoped it would be remedied immediately. Some time ago either water or gas (the former, we believe,) was taken into the hose house and the pavement torn up to permit the passage. The dirt was evidently thrown back into the trench carelessly and a high ridge now marks the place, upon which the stones have been laid. It is perhaps six inches higher than the pavement and the unwary pedestrian invariably knocks his foot against it, spoils a $15 boot and is in danger of ruining the appearance of his nose. It resembles a new made grave as much as anything else. If there was any possible excuse for it our strictures would be less severe, but fifteen minutes work would suffice to level it with the rest of the walk.

—A correspondent of the Pittsburg Leader, writing from Cherrytree, Indiana county, says the place was named to commemorate an incident in early history. The treaty of William Penn with the Indians for the the purchase of this portion of the State, agreed that one white man and two Indians should row a canoe up the Susquehanna river until they ran aground, at which point the corner of the northern boundary should be be made. It was at Cherrytree the canoe marines first struck bottom, and a cherry tree growing on the bank of the river was marked as the corner. From this tree the town took its name.

—Over in Centre county the people believe in making practical use of the telephone, as was instanced on Tuesday last, when the Board of Commissioners of that county swore a man by telephone, in regard to some unseated land business, the man sworn being distant from the county seat eight miles.—Huntingdon Semi-Weekly News.

—The Clarion papers report that cattle cholera is prevailing to an alarming extent in portions of Washington, Knox and Farmington townships. Complaints are being made that many persons fail to bury the cattle as they die, leaving them to rot in fields or woods, thus adding to the spread of the infection.

A Warning to the Liquor Sellers of Bellefonte.

Our attention has been called to the alarming increase of drunkenness and rowdyism on the streets of Bellefonte, especially on Saturday nights. Until within the past month our streets have been generally quiet, and very few disturbances of any consequence occurred. But this comparatively peaceful state of affairs has been succeeded during the past ten days by disorder and carousing on the wholesale scale. For instance, on Saturday night, Sept. 22, about every third man encountered on the streets was in an intoxicated condition, and passers-by had to put up with the annoyance of being run into by drunken men, and listen to their foul oaths and epithets. Several arrests for disorderly conduct were made by the police, and the Sheriff, we believe, also took a hand in restoring order, and protecting ladies from the insults of drunken rowdies. Now, then, the question arises, who are responsible for this spectacle of lawlessness? We answer that the hotel men and saloon-keepers are largely to blame. With one or two exceptions the proprietors of drinking places in Bellefonte are becoming far to loose in their methods of selling liquor. Men of known intemperate habits are allowed to sit down in their saloons and drink themselves stupid, and we are told that boys not sixteen years old are furnished with liquor at some of the bars in Bellefonte. We shall not publish, in this article, the names of these men who daily violate the law, but we distinctly assure them that a continuance of their illegal practices will result in a thorough overhauling by the authorities. A man who will sell whiskey or beer to a drunkard, and to boys who are not yet through with their school books, has no more principle than a stone, and it is a shame and a disgrace that Bellefonte contains such individuals. Sheriff Dunkle, we are pleased to know, has been giving the matter his attention, and he requests us to warn the guilty parties that they are "spotted," and that prompt measures will be taken to enforce the law in all cases of illegal selling after this date. Hereafter there must be less drunkenness and rowdyism in Bellefonte, or the parties who are responsible for it must pay the penalty. Gentlemen, you are fairly warned. Beware!

A Personal Encounter.

Up-town people were somewhat excited on Monday of last week by the bellicose actions of two individuals who give themselves the title of Doctor. One claims to be a veterinary surgeon and the other a healer of those great scourges of the Bellefonte public—corns and bunions. They pursued their avocations with energy. People were solicited for an exhibition of their sorest and most tender corn that Dr. Charles Levy might apply his science to its removal, while all the horses in town neighed joyfully because of the frequent visits of Dr. W. C. Corbett. But Rome was too small for Sylla and Marius, Octavuis and Antony, Pompey and Ceasar, and Bellefonte proved to be too small for two such exalted personages as Corbett and Levy. On Saturday they met and a war of words was followed by a personal encounter with those natural weapons, the fists, in which Levy, the smaller man, physically, at least, won a victory over his opponent. They separated, but with vengance and retaliation gleaming in each one of their four eyes, especially in the orb of Dr. Corbett's which, had been draped in mourning. Sunday wore away, but still they nursed their vengeance. Monday dawned and the disturbed condition of the elements increased their angry feelings. When they met they scowled at each other and threatened the most dire punishment. Monday afternoon Corbett, armed with a revolver, chanced to see his rival. Taking aim, he fired. We cannot state positively how close the ball approached to Levy, but certain it is that he escaped unscathed. The two men were conducted before 'Squire Rankin, who, after hearing the testimony in the case, sent them to Fort Dunkle, where Corbett is languishing under $600 bail and Levy is contemplating the Bellefonte justice that imposed bail for $300. That's right, fellow citizens; teach these offenders of the law that the "way of the transgressor is hard."

—The story is told that Forepaugh's handsome bill car could not be brought through the tunnels on the Pennsylvania railroad which accounted for the appearance of the shabby car a few days ago. That story is probably manufactured.

—There is perhaps less temperance sentiment in Bellefonte than in any other community of equal size in the State.

—Newt's jokes, like himself, are shadows.—Artiste Augustine. It might be added that Artiste Augustine is one of Newt's jokes.

—Sheriff Dunkle returned from Clearfield on Tuesday night, Sept. 25, with a horse thief in charge. The prisoner's name is David Hicks and he is the same customer who escaped from the Sheriff several months ago at Lock Haven. He hired a horse from a Mr. Keppler, a Philipsburg liveryman, and sold it. Of course, Sheriff Dunkle was glad to again get his clutches upon the man. It appears that he had been arrested in Clearfield and the Sheriff was sent for to take charge of him. The man was band-cuffed and hobbled, but nevertheless attempted to escape from the Sheriff, his efforts to do so proving unsuccessful. When the Sheriff reached Tyrone he found that another horse-thief named Norris had been arrested between that place and Bells Mills for a similar offense. He had taken a horse from the livery stable of William Rook, of Philipsburg, and also disposed of it, receiving $100. He was in the charge of a Tyrone constable and the party entered the train to come to Bellefonte. At Fowler Sheriff Dunkle noticed that they had left the train and supposed that they would arrive this morning. They failed to put in appearance, however, and from what he heard by telephone, he has reason to believe that Norris escaped?

—Among the various conventions announced to meet during the month of October, none promises to be more interesting or entertaining than that of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath school Association, which will assemble in Scranton, Lackawanna county, on Tuesday, October 16, to continue three days. The presence of such representatives of Sunday-school work as Mr. B. F. Jacobs, of Chicago, Rev. G. R. Alden and Mrs. G. R. Alden, (Pansy) will render the exercises unusually attractive. County associations are requested to send delegates and we suppose the Centre County Association will be represented. All delegates will be entertained and rates over the railroads will be reduced. Ministers and people are requested to observe Sunday, October 14, a day of prayer for the convention, presenting its claims during the morning service and offering special prayer for the Divine blessing upon it during the evening service.

—Dr. W. C. Corbett and Dr. Chas. Levy have been liberated from jail, the bail being slightly reduced in each case. Mr. Harry Hicks gave bail for the former, Dr. Corbett leaving a valuable horse and buggy in his possession, while Mr. Jno. P. Harris performed the same service for Dr. Levy.

—Those holes in the sidewalk on High street, which we alluded to in a former issue, are, we notice, still in good condition—for throwing people on their heads. It will be all right, though, if the property holders along that side of the street are the only ones who get their shins peeled.

—Tom Mitchell, a son of Mr. Isaac Mitchell, fell while running along the pavement on the Spring street side of Mr. Thos. Reynolds' house on Thursday, breaking his left arm near the elbow. He was carried into Mr. Reynolds' house where Dr. Dartt set the injured member. He bore the pain quite heroically. We hope to hear of his speedy recovery.

—John Wagner has sold a lot on Lamb street to the Electric Light Company, of which George Valentine, Esq., is President, on which they propose to erect works soon. As John has the reputation of being a first-class engineer, and is an industrious and sober man, the company could not do better than to give him a job at running their engine.

—The largest sheet of glass ever made at the Bellefonte glass works was made on Wednesday by Mr. Wm. Kulp, one of the most experienced workmen. It measured 62x42 inches and is of double strength. It is part of an order that will be shipped to Chicago. This speaks volumes of praise for the glass works here and shows that they are able to fill any order that may come in this direction.

Henderson's Iron and Steel Processes—A Novel Furnace.

On Wednesday afternoon we were shown by Mr. Henderson, Jr., through what is usually known as the steel works near the glass manufactory, below town, and were permitted to obtain an inspection of a wonderful combination of machinery, which is now complete in every particular and is different from any other machinery in the world. Several months ago, before the patents were all obtained, we were shown through the same establishment by Mr. James Henderson, the patentee, and at that time for prudential reasons, were requested not to give the result of our inspection to the public as all visitors were then refused admission to the works, there being enemies lurking near ready to take unfair advantage of the ingenious contrivances of Mr. Henderson's brain before he had obtained all his patents. The recent dates of the patents on his great "direct-acting gas furnace" are shown as follews: "Patented March 29th and Aug. 16th, 1870; September 26th, Oct. 17th and Nov. 14th, 1882; March 27th, May 22nd, June 12th and 26th, July 10th, 24th and 31st, 1883."

The gas producer, a mammoth circular arrangement of iron, is one of the principal parts of the furnace. In it the gas is generated and forced through a neck where it mingles with hot air and is forced into a large circular vessel in which the melting process takes place. This is arranged with a movable revolving hearth, which is mounted on a rotary platform that can be raised or lowered into position by hydraulic power. The hearth is moved by a three-horse power engine and makes three to four revolutions per minute. It rests upon wheels and can be run out on rails for the purpose of making repairs or renewing the pan that contains the molten metal.

Hot air and cold air pipes connect with air compressors and with the boiler, the various uses of which we do not understand. The furnace, which was purposely constructed on a small scale to serve as a model, will produce sixteen tons of iron, or steel, in twenty-four hours. To generate the gas requires 300 pounds of Ohio soft coal per hour, Snow Shoe coal not being suitable for the purpose.

We have already alluded to the fact that Mr. Fearon Mann has made a cold-chisel of the steel manufactured at the steel works. A chisel was also made at the nail works where the iron will be tested in making nails.

The superiority of this furnace over others seems to be that all the forces are utilized, and there is absolutely no waste of material. The cost of producing iron and steel is thus reduced over three hundred per cent. Steel for which from 10 to 18 cents is asked can be manufactured for 2½ cents per pound. Yet another advantage is that the work can be carried on without any cessation of operations, other furnaces requiring long and tedious delays.

Mr. James Henderson departed for New York on Wednesday on business relating to the works. He has not yet decided whether to continue his model furnace here or not, as parties have been soliciting him to remove it elsewhere, but it is believed that with the completion of the railroads now projected and a reduction of freight rates, not only will the model furnace remain here, but a larger one to manufacture steel on an extensive scale will be erected.

Mr. G. L. Rowland, one of the owners of the works, was here recently and was much pleased with the experiments then made. He is manager of the Continental Iron Works, Brooklyn. Mr. Chas. G. Francklyn, the other owner, has not yet been here, but is expected the next time fire is put in the furnace.

Much of Mr. Henderson's success in the recent experiments is due to the skillful aid of Mr. William Pettingill of St. Albans, Vermont, who understands the art of firing the furnace and was successful when others had tried and failed. He is still here and will conduct future experiments.

The quality of the steel produced by the process exceeds Mr. Henderson's most enthusiastic anticipations, and in our humble opinion we should think that his valuable patent will be worth millions to him.

—The storm of Friday evening prevented the electric light display that was announced to take place in front of Lyon's Bishop street meat market. Mr. Lyon thought that there was enough electricity in the air without adding any of the artificial kind to it. The entire town was brilliantly illuminated with electric light when the lightning flashed, in comparison with which Philipsburg's electric light could not have been seen.

—While the Court House is undergoing repairs it is hoped that the clock on the dome will not be overlooked. The figures on the dial are fast fading from view.

How Two Boggs Township Men Made a Mistake.

A few days ago two men from Boggs township, who are well known, were walking lazily along Allegheny street glancing in every direction, evidently with the intention of seeing all that is worthy of notice on that thoroughfare. The pavements on Allegheny street have been so much improved of late that it is possible for pedestrians to look in other directions than at their feet to guard against stepping in a treacherous hole, as was formerly the case—consequently the interesting objects in that direction are coming into notice. The two travelers passed the residence of Mr. E. C. Humes and when they placed their feet upon the new pavement in front of Mr. Fearon Mann's residence they stepped lightly and carefully.

"Aha, Jacob; this is a fine pavement," said one; "I wonder how much it cost the owner; who lives in this house, anyway?"

"Yes, you are right, John;" returned Jacob. "This pavement will last many a long year. Don't you know that Mr. Mann lives in this house? He bought it some time ago from Mr. Milliken and made many im—Hist! Just look there, will you. Don't make a noise. Look under that bush—the beatifulest white rabbit you ever saw."

"Well, I declare to gracious," said Jacob, "that is a real rabbit, isn't it. So tame; it doesn't move at all. I've heard that Mr. Mann owned some tame rabbits, but never saw them before. Jerusalem! John, there's another—a gray one—on the other side."

"Are you just certain they're genuine flesh and blood rabbits?" asked John in an undertone. "It's strange that they should sit so still-like, and not move even so much as one of their ears. There, didn't you think you saw the left ear of that one twitch just a little?"

"Of course it did, Jacob; you're kind of green to intimate to an old rabbit hunter like me that those are anything but the right sort of rabbits. Just wait till I shy a stone at this white one and you'll see it run."

John picked up a pebble and cast it at the innocent white rabbit, but didn't hit it. "There," he exclaimed; "didn't I frighten it? It moved about an inch, didn't it."

Jacob only smiled incredulously.

"Now I'll convince you," said the still confident John. Selecting a larger stone and throwing it with a truer aim, he hit the rabbit, but still it remained in the old position utterly regardless of the missles.

"Well, if it's a real rabbit, it's one of the sort that don't have any feeling and is blind in both eyes," acknowledged John; and the two friends moved on, in quest of other objects of interest.

A Statement From the Doctor.

We received a call last week from Dr. W. C. Corbett, the veterinary surgeon who had the little difficulty on Monday with the man who extracts corns. Mr. C. came in to give us a few particulars in regard to the matter, stating that the articles that had been published reflected unjustly upon him and were liable to do him great injury in neighboring towns where he proposed to visit. According to the Doctor's statement the trouble on Monday grew out of a quarrel which occurred between the two on Saturday over some money matters in which he came out second best, also with a black eye. He was willing, however, to call quits and consider the matter settled. But the other fellow wouldn't have it so, and on Monday began a search for his man with the evident intention of renewing the quarrel. The Doctor says he didn't want to have anything more to do with the fellow and endeavored to keep out of his way; but they finally met in a hotel where the shooting occurred. The Doctor was standing talking to a gentleman from Unionville, when up stepped the corn Doctor with clenched fists and arms outstretched in a very threatening attitude, followed by several of his friends. Thinking that he was about to be assulted, the Doctor drew a revolver and fired one shot, a blank cartridge, with the sole purpose, he says, of frightening off his assailant. The shot had the desired effect. The corn "exterminator" made himself scarce, and has not troubled the Doctor since.

This is the Doctor's account of the unpleasantness as related to us. He is under $500 bail for his appearance at November court. He will be on hand for the trial and is not at all alarmed at the probable result.

—The bicycle is becoming quite popular in Bellefonte. We understand that the heavy member of the firm of Lyon & Co. contemplates purchasing one to ride back and forth from his place of business. The day he mounts his nickel-plated steed we shall endeavor to be around with our little note book.

Contractors' War in Curtin Township.

A correspondent from Curtin township calls our attention to what looks to be a "crooked" proceeding in the matter of building a school house in that district. The letting for the building of the same was advertised to take place on September 1st, but as several bidders were present who were not in the "ring" the letting was postponed to Saturday, Sept. 15. At this meeting Mr. A. S. Tipton appeared as a bidder, who also was not in favor with the ring. An effort was made to choke him off, but he wouldn't choke. Finally, at the suggestion of the secretary of the board, Mr. Tipton sealed his bid and offered it to the board with the stipulation that it should not be opened until all the other bids had been received, and that if the board intended to receive bids after his had been opened to return his to him unopened. Mr. N. G. Pletcher also sealed his bid and sent it in. The other bidders were John McCloskey, and David Brickley. The former is a brother of the secretary, and the latter is a member of the school board. Pletcher's bid was $849, and McCloskey and Brickley bid $825. It was suggested, our correspondent states, by McCloskey and Brickley, that Tipton's bid be not opened, but the president, Mr. Robb, was directed to break the seal and announce the bid, which was $800. This threw a wet blanket on the "ring's" little game, and significant winks were exchanged among the board, resulting in John McCloskey going Mr. Tipton $10 better. After a long consultation by the ringsters Mr. McC. was awarded the contract. This double-dealing of the board looks suspicious, to say the least. Mr. Tipton is known to be an honest man, and their determination to "euchre" him out of the contract suggests that the members had set up a job whereby they and the ring were to pocket a slice from the appropriation. Mr. Tipton states that he will build the school house, and has begun on the foundations. McCloskey has also begun operations. The site of one laps over on the other, and a collision is expected. Nine-tenths of the citizens of the district are in favor of Mr. Tipton building the house.

——Since writing the above we learn that the matter will be submitted to the court for settlement, the parties interested being in town on Saturday for that purpose.

A Man Falls a Distance of Forty-Five Feet.

On Wednesday morning at about 10 o'clock a startling and what might have been a terrible accident occurred near Valentines Ironworks. William Miller, a forgeman, was engaged in painting the smoke-stack which rises to the height of about fifty feet from the ground. A block and pulley apparatus was used to elevate the workmen, and Miller had been elevated by Mr. George Tate and Mr. Amos Mullen the entire distance and had painted down about five feet. Mr. Tate was manipulating the apparatus below. Suddenly, as the rope was being lowered it became detached in some way from the pulley below and the seat upon which Miller was sitting turned under him. He shot down the entire distance although the force of the fall was arrested in some degree by coming in contact with the wall. He fell, we believe, on his side, and when he was picked up by persons who came to his assistance he was supposed to be dead. But he was soon able to speak in a dazed sort of a way and before long entirely recovered his rational mode of speech. Strange to relate, he seemed to be but slightly injured. An abrasion on his head and injuries to his leg and side were the full extent of the hurts that he received. On Wednesday he was resting as comfortably as could be expected, and Dr. A. Hibler, the attending physician, said he detected no evidence of internal injuries. Miller is a married man.

Relieved of Her Sufferings.

Mrs. J. D. Shugart, who has been a sufferer for many months from a cancerous affection, died this morning between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock. Deceased was the wife of J. Dunlop Shugart, Esq., cashier of the Centre County Bank, and the daughter of the late Dr. J. M. McCoy. Her age was about 36 years. Deceased was a great sufferer during the last days of her illness. By her death four children, the eldest not being over 12 years old, are left without a mother's care and protection. The funeral will be held on next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Dedication.

The new M. E. church at Rock, Pleasant Gap Circuit, will be dedicated to the service of Almighty God, Sunday, October 21. The service will be in charge of Rev. J. H. McGarrah, assisted by Rev. John Hewitt and Rev. J. D. Penepacker. Service at 10 o'clock a. m.

The Political Pot.

The interest felt in the coming election in this county is very dull, but there are lots of Democratic candidates canvassing the county for the suffrage of the voters this fall a year. The members of the Court House ring have a full ticket slated, and are fixing things in all the townships of the county. We think we could name the ticket without, perhaps, the Sheriff and Commissioners, but it is hardly worth while for us to give them away at this early day. The people will find them out soon enough. We will say this, however: If the votors are wise they will upset this whole ring business, and if it is forced through at the Democratic convention a year hence, will elect the Republican ticket, if the Republicans do the right thing and put a first class ticket in the field. It is about time a new set of men were put in the offices of the county that would let the people know what has been going on there for the last twenty years. Parties are made for men, and not men for parties, but there are a few Democrats in this county who seem to think or act as though they thought the Democratic party was made for their especial benefit, and that all the offices should be divided around among their clique, and that they should hold on to them until they make enough out of the people to live the rest of their lives in affluence. It has always been a surprise to us that the voters will submit to this; but they have for years and perhaps they will again. Talk about "bosses," gentlemen. Why you have the most complete set of bosses in the Court House now that ever ruled any party. Well, it is none of our funeral, but we should like to see the people take the matter in hand just once and act and vote independent of these ring roosters.

—The Presbyterian church at Mill Hall is organizing an excursion to go to Snow Shoe on the 10th of October next. The prospect is that they will have a fine mountain trip if the weather keeps fine. There is no time of the year when the scenery is more beautiful than now, and the sight going up the mountains cannot fail to be enchanting. We can assure them that they will find the people at that city prepared to meet them with the latch string out in every house without any regard to their particular notions about religion. Saint and sinner will all extend them a hearty welcome. Snow Shoe people have always been famed for their open handed hospitality.

—If you want to hear an interesting discussion upon religion, or some other popular topic, just drop into Cy. Weaver's tobacco store some evening when there is a full house. They are all free thinkers there, and express their views with as much freedom as they think, and in language terse and powerful, if not elegant. Lawyer Potter had the floor Friday evening and defended the character of St. Paul ably against those who thought Paul's sayings were not entitled to as much credit as the writings of those men who had been the constant daily associate of our Saviour while on earth

—Pedestrians seem determined to make use of the foot bridge on the Bush House side of the Spring creek bridge. The rails that are put up in the evening to keep people off the walk are torn down by some parties who are probably too lazy to cross to the other side. When the walk is removed entirely we presume these fellows who have such a fancy for crossing on that side of the street will shin down the walls and wade through the creek.

—At our last settlement with the Daily News on Monday we found a balance against us of three cents. Two weeks advertising, one and one-half cents per week, total, three cents. —Artiste Augustine.

No, that isn't correct. If you are determined to pay for your advertising we shall have to charge you regular rates, 10 cents per line. We charge just the same for advertising a dude as we would a red heifer, or a bunion cure.

—Mr. Will Auchenbach came out of the West;
Throughout the whole town his steed was the best;
Like a meteor he rode down the High street way,
At about 10 o'clock a. m. Saturday.

The maid at his side looked modest and Meek,
As to the country they went rare pleasure to seek;
On horseback they rode full many a mile,
And promptly returned before a great while

—Samuel Moore, Jr., of Lancaster, has been buying up some of this year's tobacco crop of Clinton county. The price he offers for prime is 13½ cents per pound. The farmers of our neighboring county are fortunate if they have any good tobacco of this year's raising to sell. The big frost left some of the fields in this county in a bad condition.

Personal Pencilings.

P. Gray Meek returned to his post at Harrisburg Monday morning.

Mr. John T. Fowler made a business trip to Tyrone on Wednesday.

Mr. Zach Steele, whose foot was injured recently, is recovering rapidly.

Mr. Hutchinson has succeeded Mr. Lingle as telegraph operator at the depot.

Rev. J. W. Gibson, of Duncansville, who is well known in Centre county, is seriously ill.

Mr. Peter Keichline has purchased Mr. Downing's billiard saloon on Allegheny street.

Mrs. Atwood and child of St. Paul, Minn., are guests at the residence of our handsome townsman, Gen. James A. Beaver.

Mrs. Klepper, of Philipsburg, formerly Miss Ada Haupt, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Haupt, of this place.

Misses Hattie Marsh and Maggie Herring, two Lock Haven young ladies, have been visiting friends at Spring Mills and other points in the county.

Dr. Kennedy, a well known physician of Shamokin, accompanied by his wife and child, have been visiting since Friday at the residence of Mr. W. B. Rankin. They departed Monday morning.

Mr. Mert Cunningham is home again, having been thrown out of employment by the failure of the Huntingdon car works. Mert is a first-class moulder, and will probably not remain idle long.

Mr. Ellis P. Marshall, of Delaware county, is spending a few weeks with his daughter in this place, Mrs. H. K Hicks. Mr. M. thinks Bellefonte one of the pleasantest spots in the State, and his visits are becoming frequent.

Col. Muffley, of Philadelphia, a son-in-law of Mrs. Gordon, of Curtin street, was in town last week. His children have been at their grandmother's house during the past summer and when he returns to Philadelphia they will accompany him.

Mrs. Kline, the wife of ex-Sheriff D. Z. Kline, of Spring street, is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Barnhart, of Iowa. Mrs. B. is the widow of Rev. Thomas M. Barnhart, of Iowa, whose death occurred almost two years ago. Mrs. Barnhart is well and favorably known by a large number of people throughout Centre county.

Mr. Sol. Goldsmith, of the Bee Hive establishment, returned home last Friday after an absence of several weeks in and about the metropolas. During his tour Mr. G. either attended a wedding or got married himself—blamed if we haven't most forgotten which. Guess we won't say anything further until we see Sol about it.

—Rev. George Penepacker preached with unusual eloquence on Sunday and well he might. On Wednesday last there was another accession to his family in the person of a darling daughter. While we are making these announcements we may as well add that Rev. W. W. Reese, M. E. minister at Milesburg, is rejoicing from the same cause. The new arrival in Rev. Reese's family is a boy. At this rate the Methodist denomination bids fair to increase more rapidly than ever before.

—The happy smile that wreathes the countenance of Mr. F. W. Crider is one that signifies more than such smiles usually do. There is another future man in Bellefonte that will call him papa. The bouncing boy arrived on Thursday evening. Mr. C. and his estimable wife have our congratulations.

—Jno. Wagner and Cy. Weaver "roamed the mountains o'er" a few days since on a squirrel hunt. They brought in seven squirrels as the result. Of this number Cy. says he shot "sixteen." Query: How many did Wagner get? Here's a conundrum for our experts to tackle.

—The Wagner Brothers, the popular millers of Milesburg, are erecting a new brick smoke-stack at their establishment in that place. The new stack will be fifty feet high and a great improvement on the old iron one. Mr. William Wolf, of this place, is doing the work.

—Welcome, October.
